Why Baby cries

Baby cries to let you know that all is not well with him; the poor little fellow has no other way of telling you. Health and happiness go hand in hand in babyhood, and Baby's cries usually mean that his food does not agree with him.

No food suits every baby, but the food that suits most babies is Glaxo. The pure, rich milk of grass-fed dairy cows, it is so digestible that Baby assimilates it as easily as mother's milk. Prepared simply by adding hot, boiled water, Glaxo provides all the nourishment that Baby needs—it forms a complete food from birth.

SURPRISE ELECTION

PIQUANT SITUATION

ALL PARTIES POWERLESS

CONSERVATIVE SETBACK

EARL DERBY NEXT PREMIER

JUBILATION AMONGST LABOURITES

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail)

LONDON, December 7.

At 6.30 p.m. the state of parties was:—

Conservative	256
Liberal	142
Labour	183
Independents	78

The situation is unprecedented in political history. The three parties are alike powerless to govern and their acute differences may make a pact impossible. The only solution possible is a temporary working arrangement. Political circles are very excited. They assume Mr. Baldwin will resign and that the King will ask Earl Derby, as representing the strongest party to form a Government. The Labourites are very pleased and the Liberals somewhat chagrined, their losses to Labour making them still the smallest party.

Mr. Baldwin and Sir Alfred Mond arrived at Paddington almost simultaneously from their constituencies. The premier, who was grave and uncommunicative, curtly remarked that he had nothing to say in regard to the situation. Sir Alfred Mond opined that Mr. Baldwin would have to resign and that Earl Derby, being more or less a free-trader might form a Government to carry on a policy of tranquillity temporarily.

LABOUR JUBILANT

Labour headquarters in the morning were jubilant. The result of the elections hitherto emphasised the disappearance of the Government majority and the fact that Labour could still claim to be the official opposition. Labour successes are attributed to the intensive work of the labour party during the last two years and their also consistent and determined attitude in regard to unemployment. It is pointed out as very significant that the Conservatives have so far gained no seats from Labour. The defeat of Mr. Arthur Henderson is much regretted by Labourites. It is pointed out that the Liberals and Conservatives combined against him, the Conservative candidate having withdrawn.

CONSERVATIVES NON-COMMITTAL

Conservative headquarters are unwilling to make a statement in regard to the election before the returns are complete. Their defeats are attributed entirely to the "dear food" cry which the circumstances of a hurried election gave no time effectively to contradict.

Mr. Churchill, who arrived in London at noon appeared to be in high spirits. He declined to discuss the situation and said he had not heard the rumour that he would be invited to contest West Derby.

"ISN'T IT WONDERFUL!"

The Asquiths and Lady Bonham Carter, leaving Glasgow for London to-day, expressed their delight at the results Mrs. Asquith exclaiming, "Isn't it wonderful!"

STOCK EXCHANGE UNSETTLED

The Stock Exchange is unsettled by the election results. Dealers generally have lowered prices as a precautionary measure in case of uncertainties in the future, and prompt realisations. Actually little selling occurred and the market closed with depressed feeling.

DEFEATED MINISTERS

LONDON, December 8.

The six ministers defeated include the Lord Advocate (the Rt. Hon. W. Watson) who did not hold his seat in the last Parliament and was beaten by the Labourite Mr. Carleton. Mr. Boyd Carpenter, Financial Secretary to the Admiralty, Mr. P. Ford, Junior and Whip, Major Tryon, Minister of Pensions, who was beaten by a Liberal, Mr. Walter Runciman at Brighton.

AGRICULTURAL SURPRISES

The defeat of the Minister for Agriculture, Sir Robert Sanders, at Bridgewater by the Liberal, Mr. Morse, by a majority of 1,431 was the climax of a number of Government reverses in agricultural districts where Government hopes were very strong in consequence of the agricultural subsidy. The most notable was the Liberal gains at Sudbury, Frome and Salisbury.

Victors and Vanquished

LIBERAL LEADER OUSTED

Sir Ronald MacNeill was re-elected and Sir John Simon elected. Liberal Labour gains, notably in the counties, continue. They include the Labourite Clive ousting the Liberal leader Sir Ronald MacNeill in a triangular contest at Kilmarnock and the Liberal Mr. Robinson, gaining Chelmsford from an ex-Conservative, Mr. Pretyman. Two Liberals gained Gateshead and Eiland from Labourites and on the contrary Labourites gained Mile End and Rotherham from Conservatives. The majority at Rotherham was 2,448. Labourites elected include Messrs. Maxton, Noel Buxton, Benspoor, Patrick Smillie, Jack Jones and Will Thorne.

EDINBURGH AND GLASGOW

Edinburgh will be represented by one Conservative, three Liberals and one Labourite, compared with two Conservatives, two Liberals and one Labourite formerly and Glasgow by five Conservatives no Liberals and 10 Labourites compared with four Conservatives, one Liberal and 10 Labourites formerly.

Mrs. Phillson was re-elected and the Labourite Tom Kennedy gained Kirkcaldy from a Liberal. The Labourites Messrs. Philip Snowden, Sidney Webb, W. Adamson, Shinwell and Lansbury were re-elected. The Liberal Mr. Comyns Carr gained East Islington in a triangular contest, the Labourite woman doctor Ethel Benthall being at the bottom of the poll. The Independent Conservative Mr. Ferguson gained Motherwell in a triangular contest, defeating the Communist Mr. Newbold and the Liberal Mr. Maxwell.

LADY CANDIDATES SUCCEEDED

The Duchess of Atholl gained Kinross, defeating the Liberal Molteno by a majority of 650, and the Liberal Lady Terrington by majority of 1,682. In a triangular contest at Wycombe, the Countess of Warwick was defeated and Mrs. Whittingham re-elected. Sir L. Worthington, Evans and Sir J. Norton Griffiths were re-elected by reduced majorities.

The Ministers, Mr. W. C. Bridgeman and Sir Winterston were re-elected. Mr. Lloyd George's majority was 5,125. Mr. Frank Hodges gained Lichfield, defeating two Liberals and the Labourite Mrs. Denham. Mr. Williams gained Kettering and the Labourite Mr. Williams gained Kettering and the Labourite Mr. Williams gained Kettering.

THE THEATRE OF THE LITTLE PEOPLE.

WHAT IT IS.

(Specially Contributed.)

[Readers of the China Mail may remember that some time ago we referred to the vogue in Italy of The Teatro dei Piccoli (The Theatre of the Little People) and how it had been greeted on its visit to London with remarkable enthusiasm, pointing to a probable revolution in the art of the Theatre with which we are more or less familiar. The China Mail is glad to be able to give the first of two articles on the Theatre of the Little People written by Dr. Vittorio Podrecca, Artistic Director and Co-partner of the Teatro dei Piccoli, and Secretary of the Royal Musical Academy S. Cecilia di Roma, thanks to the kindness of the Acting Consul for Italy in Hongkong, Signor G. Biondelli. The first article is "What is the Teatro dei Piccoli?" The second, which will appear in a future issue of the China Mail, is entitled "With the Marionettes Behind the Scenes."]

Before one has known it, it is a puzzle which it seems difficult to unravel, but after you have once been to it, it becomes a craze and soon turns into a microbe, and when you have it you can get rid of it no more. (If all microbes were as wholesome as the Teatro dei Piccoli the world would be a better place to live in.) Yet after a time you realize that you have fallen victim to an illusion, the most beautiful illusion of human life which makes you think and feel and acknowledge that there is something beyond and above the comprehension of the human mind.

There you are—yours, a full-grown human being—with all your divine gifts of knowledge and understanding, watching... what? listening... to what? enthusing... over what? No, don't tell me that you are looking at mere wooden dolls; think that you are listening to voices that come from unseen human beings; don't say that this is a cleverly arranged mechanical show—let your higher judgment guide you by acknowledging that you are witnessing what your wildest imagination could scarcely hope for: a dream come true. The dream of your childish fancy, the dream of eternal youth.

For what are we when we are sitting in front of the diminutive stage of the Teatro dei Piccoli? nothing but children, the delight of children, the imaginative mind of children. If it were not so we would not come a second time to it, for we would be able only of ridiculing the illusion. And where would be the wisdom of scornful illusion if through its medium we can acknowledge our power of being foolish and wise at the same time? Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis foolish to be wise.

Happily for us, however, the Teatro dei Piccoli is a very real illusion which is not whisked away as dreams are, but has solidly taken root in Rome (Italy) where it was founded in 1914 and has in the course of nearly ten years acquired a world-renowned fame. After a very successful season in London it is now ready to go to the United States, where, no doubt, it will be received with that comprehension and that sympathy which it has found so far everywhere.

The Story.

The story of why and how the Teatro dei Piccoli was started is indeed very interesting.

Its founder, Dr. Podrecca, a journalist and a musical and art critic, having for many years been deeply interested in the study of the theatre and its evolution, thought that he would like to identify himself with the artistic movement representing the vanguard of decorative music and theatrical art. Without money for venturing on an enterprise on a large scale, and realising moreover that money alone would not do away with old fetters and ingrained prejudices against certain necessary reforms, he hit upon the idea of taking out of oblivion and bringing back into the limelight of art the long-forgotten marionette, adding new splendour to its very ancient tradition and to its fading glory.

The history of the puppet show loses itself in the dim past. Its origin is almost unknown: in the time of the Romans they were already familiar, nor were they unknown to the Egyptians, during the Middle Ages—when they were still preserving their sacred character—they arose to high honour, being the first form of theatrical entertainment of many chiefs-d'œuvre, among which the most important has been FAUST. In Italy it became a most popular form of entertainment: at one time it served to familiarise the people with stories of the Bible and the Saints, while at another it formed the counterpart of another institution known all over the world, the Italian Comedy.

In 1913 Dr. Podrecca began materialising his idea by gathering together artists and painters and by "discovering" marionette operators. He also went out of his way to find in dust-ridden attics or in musty smelling curiosity shops veteran puppets of all kinds and periods. At times some of these wire-dolls were so ancient that they almost came to pieces in his hands, while it often happened that in searching through boxes full of rubbish he would come across some artistic head.

Thus after a year of undaunted efforts and of hard work in order to harmonise the various elements, composing it in February 1914, the TEATRO DEI PICCOLI gave its first performance.

Quite New.

It took Rome by storm because it really was what it claimed to be: the theatre of the little players. Here people were asked to witness something quite new, something unexpected: not mere wooden dolls pulled by wires and pouring forth doubtful antics of a somewhat vulgar character, but real miniature actors who were moving, singing, dancing, carousing in the most perfect way, aided and abetted by real operas and fairy tales full of good wholesome humour. That is why, although from its nature and its tradition it has a great attraction for children, yet the genuinely artistic appeal of its entertainment has rendered it even more stimulating to the adult than to the child.

To realize how true this is one need only to have witnessed a first performance in Rome. A first night at the Teatro dei Piccoli had become quite a social event, and some of these performances have become quite memorable. Grown ups and children have united—though probably guided by different motives—in their unanimous enthusiasm, just as diplomats, politicians and the aristocracy of name, have not disdained to join in the same applause with the aristocracy of art and journalism. More than once it has happened that nearly the whole Cabinet has flocked there for an hour's relaxation.

While Mr. Fidora and Dr. Podrecca are the guiding spirits of the enterprise, yet the technical interpreters are the marionette operators—there are about a dozen of them and they belong to a family who jealously preserve the tradition of marionette operators: a profession the secret of which is handed down from father to son (Gorno-Dell'Acqua-Cord-Prappi).

They have at their disposal about a hundred scenery and over 500 puppets. They tend them like children with loving care. Marionettes may be of wood, but they have moods and fancies like real people, and they do not like their clothes to be dowdy, or their hair not properly curled, and it would be a calamity indeed if the prima donna's hat was not put on properly in front of a mirror or if her lace handkerchief was missing, nor could Signor Bruschi do without his lorgnon. And there is moreover a hospital for these marionettes who, having become too lively have disturbed their usual equanimity.

To complete the picture of the invisible world that grows round the marionettes, we must mention the orchestra, the singers, the actors, directly connected with the performance, while no less important are the painters, the sculptors, electric operators, etc., who are responsible for all the finishing touches necessary to the perfection of the entertainment. For this little theatre has really reached a very high degree of technical perfection, and is for ever aiming higher and higher.

For it is indeed true that, whether we see them performing one of Rossini's operas full of old-world charm, or merely a number of their charivaria, art is always their keynote, and the predominant note of this show lies in that each character which the marionettes represent has its own peculiar setting and its own individual pathos. They do not aim at ridiculing mankind or at caricaturing its foibles, but with delicate finesse they make us laugh and weep at what seems an elusive reality. For on which stage can you see mingling together with perfect ease and unconcern kings and peasants, fairies and humanised animals?

Mussolini.

The Prime Minister of Italy, Signor Mussolini, has greatly interested himself in this educational institution and has presented the Teatro dei Piccoli with his portrait accompanied by the following letter.

"I most heartily commend that most excellent institution, the Teatro dei Piccoli which has attracted such universal admiration, not only among the children, but also among so many notabilities in the artistic world. The highly educative mission of the theatre has been completely realized in the delightful Hall of the Palazzo Odescalchi, which is one of the most attractive and genuine manifestations of art to-day."

It delights me to know that such characteristics of a national artistic expression are justly appreciated abroad, where, no doubt, the Teatro dei Piccoli will uphold the splendid traditions of Italian art.

With these thoughts and sentiments, I have great pleasure in presenting my photograph to the wizards of all those most beautiful illusions which have won the unanimous applause of that most exacting and fastidious spectator: the Critic."

Also the Royal Family of Italy has always displayed a keen interest in these performances, and many a time has the Queen requested a performance in order to give a treat to the Royal children, and Signor Podrecca-Fidora are very proud of the autographed photograph of little Princess Maria, the youngest of the King's children. Prince Humbert too, has signified his appreciation by sending his photograph with a dedication.

In fact, so great has been the appreciation shown by everyone in Rome in Italy and abroad that Signor Podrecca is the proud possessor of a large album of autographed photographs. But to Signor Podrecca—Fidora the most gratifying appreciation has come from the educational bodies of the country who have recognized in the Teatro dei Piccoli a very high moral value. The Royal House has offered several silver medals for original works to be specially written for the marionettes; the Under-Secretariat for Fine Arts has given a special diploma; the Ministry of Education deems it a work of national importance, and so do all the Educational Bodies of Italy. Throughout the 10 years of its existence special performances have been given for schools and Prof. Montesano, who has a great hospital for backward children, has found the musical performances of the T.d.P. a great help towards the psychotherapeutic cure for his little patients.

An Antiseptic Lintment

There is no danger whatever from Jack-jaw or blood-poison resulting from a wound when Clarke's Blood Mixture is promptly applied. It is antiseptic and destroys the germs which cause these diseases. It also causes wounds to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For aloe everywhere.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

How time flies! Here is Christmas round again, another new year following close, and it seems only like yesterday since. . . But Christmas is not quite here yet. There are still seventeen more days before it comes. Whether or not the old saw lies and anticipation fails to speed, or even to equal, realisation, these days anyway are almost as exciting as the great occasion itself. For they see the joys and the thrills of our Christmas shopping. True, the Colony has done much of its Christmas shopping. If relatives and friends are to be pleased, the Christmas gifts in time for the festive season, purchases must be made long before routine's hum-drum had become tinged with the glamour of Christmas. But there are the laggards. And still more numerous—much more numerous—there are those who still have their Hongkong Christmas shopping. Households must see that nothing wants in every department of eating and drinking if the occasion is to be celebrated with traditional joviality. Parents must adopt clever stratagems to smuggle boys into the house if evening stockings are to be discovered next morning brimful with wondrous delights for the young—and sometimes, too, for the old! Then again, perhaps the most delightful and the most intriguing part of the whole merry business Christmas shopping requires ever changing viewpoint. "What would Dick like the best?" or "Just picture Mary's delight when she discovers this!" And so it goes with endless variety for fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, uncles and aunts—not to mention cousins and friends. This buying for others, this seeking to please them most, is the real secret of the joy. Christmas shopping always brings. The purchases are presents—emblems of goodwill, if not of affection. And now, while so much thought is being given to the pleasure of others, Christmas shoppers should remember that it is a real kindness, which will be appreciated by everyone connected with the shops, if purchases are made early. This consideration will also spare shoppers themselves. They will then escape the "rush hours" when the range of selection is necessarily smaller, when the question "what to give?" becomes a problem, a very problem indeed.

Is San Is Dangerous?
Our Hongkong correspondent states that Dr. Sun Yat-sen's supporters have suffered serious reverses in the peninsula at the hands of Kwangtung forces. His troops are reported as retiring into the prosperous Sze Yap districts. This is not the first time that danger has threatened the Generalissimo from the south but little has come of the previous movements against his rule at Canton. From accounts in the vernacular press, the anti-Sun element in the south comprises the rabble of a number of adventurers who seem to be out for what they can get. Obviously, Canton is not particularly anxious as to the results of the campaign in the south, trusting to the natural desire of the local commanders to hold on to their jobs. But this is not the only source of danger. Hordes from neighbouring provinces are pouring into Kwangtung across the northern border and Chan Kwang-ming's shadow still lurks ominously on the east. What little public opinion there is has fluctuated from pro-Sun to be decidedly against him. This does not mean that Chan is favoured. He is not. Some may argue that the tyranny and oppression now inflicted on the people is not attributable to Sun directly but to his military subordinates, and that whatever is raised does not line his pockets but is for the common cause. Sun's ideals are not questioned. He may be a voice in the wilderness and all that but will he receive for ever the support which is so necessary for him to retain his position? Can he obtain his objects in the face of political enemies and weakening public opinion?

A man wonders who were the other men of a woman's past; a woman wonders who will be the other women of a man's future.

Here is a story of a Canny! canny Scot—a village cobbler in Forfarshire. He was convicted before a magistrate of some misdemeanour, and was sentenced to pay a fine of half-a-crown, or suffer twenty-four hours' imprisonment. If he chose the alternative, it implied his being taken to the general prison at Perth. The cobbler commuted with himself. "I'll go to Perth," he said. "I have business in the town, at any rate." An official conveyed him to Perth by train, but when he reached the goal he said he would pay the fine. The governor found that he would have to take it. "And now," said the cobbler, "I want my fare home."

The governor demurred, made inquiries, and discovered there was no alternative; the prisoner must be sent back at the public expense to the place from whence he had been brought. So the canny cobbler got the two shillings and eighteen-halfpenny, which represented his fare, transacted his business, and went home triumphant, twopenny halfpenny and his railway journey the better off for his offence.

Stage Hand—
A CLEAR CASE. "Did you say you wanted a window or a widow?"
Show Manager—"I said window, but they're both much alike. When I get near either of them I always look out."

What does such a function as a St. Andrew's Ball actually cost? We don't know. We can only estimate. Assuming that 500 members made it their business to attend and invite their friends and that each paid $25 for the privilege, that gives us $12,500. There the matter ends. Does it? Of the 500 members, twenty, let us say, found they needed new dress clothes. Bang goes $2,000. One hundred found they needed new pumps. Add say, $1,000. The five hundred new ties; that meant $500 at least. New shirts would account for $500, and gloves a further $500. There would be special hair-cuts making say $100 and chair, taxi, and motor hire on the night of all nights $500. Now come the ladies, and here we find our position most difficult for we are young and the knowledge of women's attire is far from us. It is probable that at a conservative estimate three hundred ladies found they couldn't possibly attend St. Andrew's unless they had a new evening dress. How much do these things cost? We don't know. Let us say $200 each. That would mean $60,000. Gloves, flowers, shoes, etc., would probably absorb $1,000. Of incidents we say nothing—not even the dinner's figures we give total $24,500 and prove that a Ball can be a good thing for trade.

Was surprised recently to hear that a CHILDHOOD, young, hopeful's favourite hymn, was "We Can Sing, Fell Through We Be."

Have since discovered he meant, "Weak and Sinful Though We Be."

sometimes by the relentless goddess, Good Form. She goes through the form of marriage and often the form of divorce, and usually she professes a form of religion. If she is a good mother she forms her children's characters and reforms her husband. Also she forms many acquaintances and enemies, and finally the form of an angel points out her real or alleged virtues inscribed in the form of gold letters on marble formed into a tombstone.

The Sunday-school teacher sprang this on her mixed class of varying ages.
"What is a myth?"
"One child said: 'A myth it is as good as a mile,' and another reckoned 'A myth is the woman for moth.'"

Today's Poem.
(Moonshine).
O, the moon is a ribald lass to-night,
The cool, green earth is her lover;
She is singing the song of strange delight,
And the fairies fly to cover.

She has whitened the hills and hardened the road,
The trees are silent and fearing;
She pricks at the heart with a silver good,
And her mocking smile is leering.

No longer a goddess serene and cold,
But a power no man may disdain;
Demanding the worship given of old
From valley and hill and plain.

O, hide from the flame of her wild desire.

She is mad for a mortal's yearning.

Lest your soul be burnt with a white-hot fire.

Ere night into day is turning.

—ALICE SHERRIE.

WEATHER CALENDAR.

DECEMBER 8.

1844. It is now the 8th of December: it has blown a most desperate East wind, all razors; a wind like one of those knives one sees at shops in London, with 365 blades all drawn and pointed; the wheat is all sown; the fallows cannot be ploughed.—Fitzgerald. Bonfiga.

WRONG-DOING.

"A merchant shall hardly keep himself from wrong doing; and a huckster shall not be acquitted from sin. Many have sinned for a thing indifferent; and he that seeketh to multiply gain will turn his eye away. A nail will stick fast between the joinings of stones; and sin will thrust itself in between buying and selling. Unless a man hold on diligently in the fear of the Lord, his house shall soon be overthrown."—ECCLESIASTICUS.

The opening performance of R.U.R. by the A. D. C. takes place this evening. Hongkong has thus an opportunity of supporting the efforts of its talented amateurs who may be relied upon to give a good account of themselves.

The late car to the Peak following the Hongkong Hotel's Carnival (dinner dante) in the Grill Rooms on Boxing Night, December 26, leaves at 2.30 a.m. This is the time also that the late car leaves following the special dinner dante at the Repulse Bay Hotel on New Year's Eve, Monday, December 31st.

Major J. C. L. Hingston, R.A.M.C., has taken over the duties of O.C. Military Hospital, Kowloon, also Medical Officer i/c European Troops and Married Families in Kowloon vice Major E. B. Jones, R.A.M.C. Major Jones has proceeded to Peking for duty as Officer in Medical Charge of Troops and O.C. Military Hospital, Peking.

The transport, "Braemar Castle," sailed from Hongkong yesterday afternoon for India and England with a large number of troops on board. Besides the 255th Coy. of the Tientsin to India, a large number of details from Hongkong are proceeding by her principally for Home. Embarkation of these details was completed by 11 a.m. and the vessel sailed at 4 p.m.

Rossini's "Barber of Seville" has its own appeal and drew an audience of large dimensions to the Star Theatre last night, which included many who had seen the Barber on previous occasions. The honours were evenly divided, the principals singing and acting in a most delightful manner adding considerably to the enjoyment of all. The Orchestra also acquitted itself well. This afternoon "Rigoletto" and this evening "Carmen" should ensure large audiences.

The M. C. L. Fete takes place to-day in the grounds of Government House where every provision has been made to assemble a great variety of attractions. The Bazaar affords an opportunity to buy presents for Christmas or to lay in a stock of useful articles of reasonable prices, and purchasers will have the satisfaction of knowing that their expenditure will benefit a number of charities both in Hongkong and at Home. The grounds of Government House are open for the Bazaar from 2.30 to 6 p.m. and the entrance is by the motor drive opposite the gate of the Botanical Garden.

"Way Down East" at the Coronet is a moving picture in more senses than one. It should not be missed. A China Mail man last night was impressed with the thoroughness which has characterised the work of the Producer, the story, and the splendid acting of the best in cinema circles. Not only that, but the music is again a strong feature. There were excerpts from Chopin and Tchaikovsky, whilst the orchestra accompanied the singing of the best of the best in the land. The audience was a large one and the picture was a success.

(2) The master of the s.s. "Glentara," reports by wireless that he passed a derelict junk bottom up, 5 miles south-west of Gap 200. The junk is a danger to navigation.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

FORTHCOMING BILLS.

It is proposed to introduce a Bill to amend the Police Force Ordinance 1900.

One of the chief objects of the bill is to deal with the status of the deck and engine room staff of the police launches. These men are not members of the police force, though it has been the custom for many years to swear them in as constables. Not being members of the force they do not come within the scope of the disciplinary sections of the principal Ordinance. It is desired to bring them under those sections. Another object is to require them to take an oath or make a declaration on engagement, because it is believed that such an oath or declaration has an appreciable moral effect. At present the swearing in of these men is not authorised by law. Clause 2 provides a new term to include these launch hands, i.e., "member of a crew." It also supplies a new term, "civilian staff," which will include the launch hands, police interpreters, police department clerks, telephone operators, and every other person, other than a member of the force, who is employed in the service of the police department. Clause 2 also amends the interpretation clause of the principal Ordinance substituting "deputy superintendents" for "deputy superintendents," as there are now two deputy superintendents.

Also a Bill to Amend and consolidate the law relating to opium. There are two main reasons for this bill. In the first place, a considerable part of the present principal Opium Ordinance, Ordinance No. 4 of 1914, is not in consonance with modern conditions because it assumes the existence of an entire trade in raw opium in Hongkong. Speaking generally, there is no longer any such trade for any legitimate purpose. In the second place, it required in certain directions greater power of control in order to prevent illegitimate dealings in opium. The bill repeals all the existing opium legislation, Ordinance, regulations and notifications under the principal Ordinance, except the regulations relating to the sale and prices of Government opium.

Another Bill to regulate the admission of persons into Hongkong.

ITALIAN OPERA.

The balance of the Italian Opera Co's season at the St. James' Theatre, more or less to "request" operas. The first will be presented this afternoon, when the offering will be "Rigoletto." To-night will see "Carmen," whilst to-morrow Signor Artini makes his only appearance of the season in the biggest part, the title role in "Otello." Other operas promised are "Tosca" and "Faust."

"GHOST WALKS."

THE UNSEEN HANDS.

Stanley Lupino, the comedian, and one of the family to which Barry Lupino belongs, publicly announces that he has not only become converted to spiritualism, but that he has been convinced of the efficacy of prayer because of vile weather he decided to sleep for the night on the couch in his dressing-room at Drury Lane Theatre. He locked the door and turned off the light, but was startled by hearing the curtain thrown back and seeing a figure disappear through the locked door. Roused again later, he jumped up in bed and saw the ghost of Dan Leno.

Lupino also makes the amazing claim that he had a broken arm massaged by unseen hands, following on prayer, and that this enabled him to appear immediately in a West End revue instead of being idle for six weeks.

Spiritualists claim that the spirit of G. R. Sims, the dramatist, is communicating with them.

IN BRIEF

NEWS FOR BUSY MEN.

CABLES.

The Stock Exchange is unsettled by election results.

A Reuters message from London, dated to-day states that the Shell Transport Co. has declared a dividend of two shillings free of income tax.

Latest election results will be found in this issue of the China Mail. Mr. Baldwin's appearance is described as "grave." Sir Alfred Mond thinks he will have to resign.

LABOUR TROUBLE.

NEW TERRITORY FACTORY.

Work is suspended, at the Chinese towel factory near Sheung Shui as the workmen have gone on strike for better pay. They are alleged to have smashed the rice-boiling pan which has caused the owners to apply to the police for protection.

MISS E. MOORE'S "LIFE."

MR. CHURCHILL AS A NAUGHTY DANCING PUPIL.

The story of two lives very successful on the stage and very happy "off" is told charmingly by Miss Eva Moore in "Exits and Entrances"—those of herself and her late husband, H. V. Esmond, the actor and playwright (Chapman and Hall, 15s.).

Before she got a start on the stage from Toole—"It a week and find your own dresses"—Miss Moore, in her early teens, taught dancing at Brighton.

I taught a small, red-headed boy. He was the naughtiest boy in the class; I used to think sometimes he must be the naughtiest small boy in the world. His name was Winston Churchill.

She and Mr. Esmond got married on a loan of £50 and the proceeds of a racing tip which came off at 40 to 1.

When Bernard Shaw and Granville Barker went into management at the Court Theatre, Harry and I met Shaw one day, and Harry asked how the season "had gone." "Well," said Bernard Shaw, "I've lost £7,000 and Barker's lost his other shirt."

To Miss Moore Mrs. Kendal said reflectively: "Think of all the things we have missed, people like you and me, through leading—er—shall we say 'well-conducted lives'! And make no mistake, we have missed them!"

George Edwards was once interviewing a candidate for the chorus at the Gaiety; he asked her, "Do you run straight?" "Yes, Mr. Edwards," was the reply, "but not very far, or very fast."

"JAZZ" A DISEASE.

CONDUCTOR AND TRIVIAL MUSIC.

Resigning his conductorship of the Harrogate Municipal Orchestra, Mr. Howard Carr has given as one of his reasons his objection to playing "trivial" music.

He told a reporter that he considered light operatic music such as is found in certain musical comedies too trivial to be presented by a musician of his knowledge and experience. He declared also that "jazz" is a disease—a form of neurasthenia.

"I could not ask my orchestra, which is so strong and one of the best in the north of England, to play what, in my view, is not good music," he said. "Music that is played in restaurants and kindras is not fit for the concert-hall."

"I am a composer of light operatic music; and I was quite willing to—and I did—play good light music, but I would not play rubbish. The primary purpose of music is to uplift people mentally; morally, and spiritually—not to assist their digestion."

Sir Dan Godfrey, conductor of the Bournemouth Municipal Orchestra, said: "Jazz" is often worth playing. People would have what they wanted in music. Only about 10 per cent. of the public always wanted the best music."

The comment of the Royal Hall Committee of Harrogate Corporation on the position taken up by Mr. Carr is that the majority of patrons have not been too enthusiastic over the programmes, mainly classical, and that the hall had been half empty on ordinary nights, whereas on popular nights the house had been full.

SURPRISE ELECTION.

ELECTION MISCELLANEA.

Lanarkshire is represented by 6 Labourites and one Conservative compared with 1 Labourite, one Communist and one Conservative formerly. A Labourite gained Lanark at the expense of the popular Conservative Minister, Captain Elliot. The London boroughs of Lewisham, Paddington and Wandsworth are solidly Conservative. Poplar is solidly Labour. St. Pancras now has two Labourites and one Conservative and Southwark two Labourites and one Liberal. Stepney is solidly Labour.

London is represented by 30 Conservatives, 11 Liberals and 21 Labourites. Fifeshire is unchanged. Sir Hamar Greenwood was defeated at Sunderland which is unchanged. Sir Robert Horne was elected in a triangular contest at Hillhead. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's majority at Aberystwyth was 3,512.

Lord Apsley (Conservative) was returned at the head of the poll at Southampton with Colonel Perkins (Conservative). There were six candidates.

Cumberland and Derbyshire are unchanged, except that one seat in each was gained by a Conservative from a Liberal. Devonshire Liberals gained three seats from Conservatives but the Tiverton result has not hitherto been declared. In Essex there are 4 Conservatives, 2 Liberals and 2 Labour, compared with 6 Conservatives and 2 Liberals. Hampshire is unchanged, with the exception of a Liberal gain from a Conservative. Kent, formerly solidly Conservative, now has 8 Conservatives, 2 Labourites and one Liberal. Lancashire has 8 Conservatives, 8 Liberals and 4 Labourites, compared with 11 Conservatives, 3 Liberals and 4 Labourites before.

In Hertfordshire, the Liberals gained one seat from the Conservatives. Captain Philipson, husband of Mrs. Philipson was defeated at Wansbeck by a Labourite. The Conservative Major Edmondson was elected at Banbury, defeating the Liberal Mr. C. B. Fry and the Labourite Captain Bennett.

Wiltshire is represented by four Liberals and one Conservative compared with three Conservatives and two Liberals formerly. In the North Riding of Yorkshire Liberals gained one seat. Suffolk and Lincolnshire are unchanged. In Norfolk the Conservatives lost a seat to the Liberals, who lost a seat to Labour. In Northumberland the Liberals gained a seat from the Conservatives. Surrey is solidly Conservative. In Warwickshire the Liberals gained a seat from the Conservatives. The Welsh counties are unchanged with the exception of one Liberal gain from Labour but one return is outstanding. The Scottish counties are incomplete. It is notable that so far there has been a Conservative gain at Roxburgh and Selkirk where the Earl of Dalkeith was returned in a triangular contest also at Moray and Nairn, while a Labourite gained a seat in Dumfriesshire. The Liberal Sir Charles Stanger gained Cleveland in a triangular contest.

The Scottish burghs are little changed. The East Riding of Yorkshire is solidly Conservative as the Liberals lost a seat. Cornwall is wholly Liberal. In Cheshire the Conservatives lost three seats to Liberals, otherwise it is unchanged. Dorsetshire, Glamorganshire and Carmarthenshire are unchanged. Belfast is unchanged. Gloucestershire is represented by one Conservative two Liberals and one Labourite compared with three Conservatives no Liberals and one Labourite formerly. The Liberal Mr. Costello gained a seat in Huntingdonshire.

The position in Oxfordshire and Wiltshire is unchanged. Salop, hitherto Conservative, now has two Conservatives, one Liberal and one Labourite.

Somersetshire has one Conservative, three Liberals and two Labourites, compared with five Conservatives and one Liberal formerly. In Staffordshire the position is unchanged, except that the Labourite Mr. Frank Hedges has replaced the National Liberal, Mr. Lichfield.

Commander Burney has been elected.

Notable gains are the two Labourites, including Miss Jewson, at Norwich, where Commr. Hilton Young and Mr. G. H. Roberts were among the four defeated. A Conservative gained Mitham from Labour, a Conservative won Holderness from a Liberal and a Liberal won Brixton from a Conservative.

At 8.15 p.m. the position was:—
Liberal-Labour 287
Conservatives 210
A Minister, Mr. Davidson, and Mr. Newbold, the Communist were defeated.

UNITED STATES' FINANCE

REDUCTION OF NATIONAL DEBT.

WASHINGTON, December 8.

Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, in his annual report to Congress, announced the reduction of the Nation's debt by 614 million dollars in the past year through the exercise of the most rigid economy and the application of business principles to Government's finances. The report contains Mr. Mellon's letter to President Coolidge to the effect that the granting of a soldier's bonus would postpone tax reductions for many years.

Mr. Mellon makes the expected recommendation of a reduction of $300,000,000 in taxes in the States by cutting the surtax on large incomes to a maximum of 25 per cent. Thereby there would actually be an increased amount on Government's receipts by 1920.

Mr. Mellon is of the opinion that the appropriation of $23,000,000 for increasing the number of coastguard vessels might help to cut down to a minimum the operation of rum smugglers.

TRAFFIC IN DRUGS.

RECOMMENDATION BY SWITZERLAND.

BERNE, December 8.

In the National Council, replying to a Socialist interpellation, with regard to "the export under false declarations of great quantities of opium, cocaine and morphia especially from Basle," M. Motta, Foreign Minister, replied that indisputably the opium question had assumed such a character that it councils its duty from the viewpoint of international solidarity to get the 1912 Convention ratified as soon as possible. The measure for ratification will be submitted to parliament in Spring at the latest.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

MANCHESTER REPORT.

Messrs. James F. Hutton & Co., Ltd., write under date October 31: The cotton markets have again been strong and new high levels for the season have been reached, fully middling American at Liverpool being quoted 17.97 on the 26th. Speculative buying has undoubtedly been largely responsible for the further rise and is apparently based on the firm belief of a decreased American crop indication when the special Bureau report of November 2 is issued. Heavy local trade buying has also again been a factor of importance. Liverpool spot and futures sales have increased substantially and the outlook for Manchester trade continues more hopeful. The Bureau report that 6,400,000 bales were ginned up to the 17th instant was slightly disappointing and has assisted the advance. This compares with 6,978,000 a year ago and 5,497,000 in 1921. The extreme advance has not, however, been maintained. There appears to be some weight of opinion which inclines to the view that a bullish crop report has been well discounted by present rates, but at the same time the possibility of 20 pence cotton is freely talked of. Probably the Bureau report on Friday next will clear the situation somewhat. Pending that a quieter tone seems to have set in. In the Manchester market there has been a considerably increased demand from almost all quarters and a good turnover has resulted. At the same time sales are not yet commensurate with enquiry for although offers continue to improve, the upward movement of prices here has again been quicker. The volume of business in negotiation is now very large and provided nothing happens to disturb confidence a fresh it looks as though a substantial amount of it will shortly be on the order books. Almost all classes of goods are included in the demand, but makers of low and medium printing cloths, and sized greys have done least. The cheapest sellers are being rapidly filled up. Spinners have found little improvement in the export demand but local enquiry and sales are causing an improvement of the basis. Prices are about 1d. per lb. higher. India business has been of most importance, the enquiry being very substantial and covering dhokies, shirtings, light whites, prints and fancies. China also shows more inclination to operate and grey, whites, and fancies have been sold.

SON-IN-LAW SUED.

£150 DAMAGES FOR POSTCARD LIBEL.

An action to recover damages for an alleged libel was brought by Walter Oliver and his wife Henrietta, of Whaddon, near Royston, Hertfordshire, against their son-in-law, Thomas Smith, of East-street Buildings, Marylebone, an ex-policeman. The alleged libels were written on postcards sent to Mr. and Mrs. Oliver. One said:

I have been thinking of the family conduct of my marriage with your disgraceful daughter Evelyn... and the deliberate lies of herself, her mother, her sister, and aunt before marriage, when I asked them about her health. They all said she had never had an illness, knowing full well she had been under a doctor for six months with heart disease and that she had been at death's door two or three times with other complaints.

There is no doubt the wedding was planned between you all, for we had only been married five days when she told me she married for name only and not to live with me.

Mr. Oliver said since the action was brought he had had numerous postcards of the same kind. As many as four had come by one post.

Mr. Justice McCordie: Containing these same charges against you?—Yes. In one of the postcards Smith said he was going to call a public meeting at Whaddon and that he had informed the police of his intentions.

Mr. Smith (to Mr. Oliver): You say you objected to the marriage?—I did.

Mr. Justice McCordie: Why did you object to this man?—I did not like the man. I thought he was not suitable for my daughter.

PETER.
Mr. Oliver said that when Smith wrote that his wife Evelyn thought more about her boy Peter than she did of him, he did not dream that his daughter Evelyn had this child Peter before her marriage. He thought Smith was referring to one of his own children by a former marriage.

Mrs. Evelyn Smith said she first met her husband in Kensington Museum Gardens, and the first day she went out with him she told about Peter, as she thought she would be open with him. He raised no objection. Their marriage was unhappy from the first week because he did not give her her place in the home, but gave it to his eldest daughter. About a month after the marriage he assaulted her and threatened her and her son Peter. She screamed, and he buried her with pillows. She left him because of his ill-treatment.

Mr. Smith denied the alleged assault upon his wife and her accusations of threats and ill-treatment. He admitted writing the postcards, but said they were true in substance and fact and were not written with malice. His object was to get an interview with a view to reconciliation with his wife.

VILLAGE GOSSIP.

Mr. Justice McCordie said it was curious if Mr. Smith's object really was to win back his wife's love that he should have written what he did on postcards to be sent to a little village where everyone was only too willing to listen to scandal and where every postcard that passed through the local post office seemed to become known to every one in the village.

The jury found a verdict for Mr. and Mrs. Oliver and awarded them £150 damages and granted an injunction restraining Mr. Smith from repeating the libels.

Mr. Justice McCordie, in entering judgment to that effect, said it was one of the most cowardly things he had ever known to send these defamatory and cruel libels to a father-in-law and a mother-in-law. "If I find that you are breaking that injunction in any way by repeating these cruel and defamatory statements," added his lordship, addressing Smith, "I shall send you to prison at once without hesitation and without regret."

SPECIAL CHRISTMAS SHOPPING SUPPLEMENT.

HONGKONG HOTEL COY.

ROUND OF FESTIVITIES.

As usual, the Hongkong Hotel Coy., has arranged an attractive round of Xmas and New Year festivities for which the bookings have already been remarkably heavy. On Boxing night there is to be a grand carnival in the Hongkong Hotel grill rooms when fancy or evening dress will be optional. There is to be a grand New Year's Eve celebration at Repulse Bay and in between there will be tea dances and dinner dances. For Boxing night and New Year's Eve, the Hotel Company have arranged for a special Peak tram at 2.30 a.m. which seems to indicate that this year the revelry is likely to be greater and to last longer than ever.

In addition, the Hongkong Hotel's guests this Xmas will have the opportunity of testing the capabilities of M. Albert Laine, who has come out here to take charge of the Hotel's culinary department. M. Laine comes with a big reputation, having been for some time in the service of the Royal household, and it may be taken for granted that his efforts will not be spared in making the forthcoming festivities a bigger success than ever.

WM. POWELL LIMITED.

FOR YOUNG AND OLD.

As Christmas draws near, a tour round the shops is always a pleasure to both old and young.

At Messrs. William Powell Ltd., the little ones will be attracted by the very fine selection of toys on display in the window. These include a very fine assortment of soldiers and mechanical toys of all descriptions from trains to steamers. The selection of crackers this year is especially pleasing and should attract both old and young. Among gifts for ladies were noticed furs, gloves, umbrellas, handkerchiefs, fancy bags, scarves, silk hosiery and dressing gowns. For the home were displayed dainty cushions, down quilts and a fine display of electro-ware. As suggestions for men were shown dressing cases, suit cases, trunks, ties, sweaters and collar boxes to suit the purse of all. The little ones are catered for in wool jackets, hats and hoods in addition to dainty frocks and kilts. All the presents are most serviceable and should find a ready sale.

YEE SANG FAT COY.

SPECIAL CHRISTMAS SALE.

The Public will be interested to learn that this leading Dry Goods Store of the colony will hold the yearly Christmas Sale for two weeks from Monday the 10th inst. to Monday the 24th inst. This Store has been in existence for some thirty years and it goes without saying that it is a Store that always gives satisfaction. It gives excellent service and as for prices and quality of their merchandise, the customers have no cause to complain. In this Christmas Sale they are offering the public a wide range of new stock of the latest style at prices surprisingly favourable. It should be a Money saving and Time saving plan for customers to buy their Christmas gifts from this store. For those who do not quite know what to give to their friends, a visit to this store will solve the problem. This store provides anything and everything for all classes, ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls. It is worth one's while to drop in to this store as you are sure to be tempted to purchase something.

WHITEAWAYS.

IDEAL GIFTS APLENTY.

Now that Christmas is fast drawing near, Messrs. Whiteaway Laidlaw & Co. are fully prepared for an invasion by the army of parents and children, anxious to follow the time-old custom of celebrating the festival by the bestowal of gifts on each other.

Through the courtesy of Mr. O. A. Smith, the genial General Manager of "Whiteley's in the East," a China Mail representative was shown over the different departments this morning.

In the Gents' Department is to be found a fine display of cardigan jackets at $19.50. Jaeger goods of all sorts, including some tempting waistcoats at $15.50 and smart overcoats at $59.50. The latest style in Stetson hats can be obtained at prices ranging between $19.50 and $25.50, while a fine line of genuine English velvet Trilbys are obtainable at $21.50. An exceptional choice selection of ties, scarves and socks are in evidence, while for the winter evening Jaeger dressing-gowns are priced at $47.50. Walking sticks to suit all tastes are on sale, while a full line of Saxone boots and shoes, for which Messrs. Whiteaway Laidlaw & Co. are the sole agents in Hongkong, can be obtained from $19.50 up. A full line of Boys' suits and overcoats for winter wear are also on view.

FOR THE LADIES.

In the Ladies' Department are to be found woollen dress materials, serges, flannels, etc.; the latest Carnivals for the dressing table; Milanese silk underwear and gauntlet gloves from the leading makers; a special line of women's and children's knitted woollen garments; artificial flowers and feathers and a wide assortment of new felt and velvet hats.

FOR THE KIDDIES.

What strikes one most forcibly, however, is the tremendous scope for the would-be purchaser in the Toy Bazaar. Here are to be found: rocking horses, velocipedes, tricycles, scooters, boxes of soldiers, electric and clock-work trains complete with tunnels and signal stations, model motor-cars, wind-up cinemas, mechanical and musical toys, woolly animals galore including fighting cats with big bushy tails, a pack of the breed of the "Study Dog Bonzo," steam-boats, puzzles, crackers, Christmas tree decorations, tumblers that refuse to remain off their equilibrium, tea-sets, walking and talking dolls, miniature sets of furniture and dolls' houses, parlour games of all sorts including a compendium of games (draughts, chess, dominoes and a roulette wheel in case for $15.50), paint-boxes and books, the usual square games, a complete line of Annals (such as Collins' Blackies, Girls' Own, Boys' Own, Chums, Chatterbox and Toodles), filled dressing, jewel, writing and manicure sets from $22.50 to $29.50 and a fine display of note-paper and cards.

On the top floor are stored artistic furnishings for curtains and casements, tablecloths and covers, cushions and cosies, carpets and linos. Crockery and hardware are well represented. There is a special line of cretonnes and the firm are specialists in the making of loose covers and in upholstering furniture. Trunks and cash-boxes and a full line of sporting requisites are there. Brass beds and bassinets, perambulators, bread-pans and ice-chests are included in the firm's extensive stock of hardware and crockery. Last, but not least, a well-stocked department of perfumes and toilet requisites from the leading manufacturers will appeal especially to the gentler sex.

LANE CRAWFORD'S.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY-ONE.

Hongkong youngsters will be missing rare treat if they do not this year insist upon being taken up to view the fairyland furnished by Messrs. Lane, Crawford Ltd.'s toy department on the first floor. Once arrived, the first centre of attraction will for them most certainly be the artistic representation of a little Swiss village, its lighted windows gleaming against a background of snow around which Santa Claus, on the pressing of a switch, makes a circuit in his sleigh. The genial Santa Claus, it is safe to say, will be required to undertake many such a journey before the Yuletide passes.

Amongst the wonderful array of toys one notes many favourites—dolls, tin soldiers, Noah's arks and so forth—but there are one or two new features which seem to indicate that the day of clockwork is passing and the nursery is entering upon an era of steam. For there are motor trucks and motor cars equipped with small boilers and fitted with a small spirit lamp underneath which is calculated to generate enough steam to keep the toy under power for about half an hour. Then there is a miniature radio set and, for the naively minded, a selection of beautiful model yachts of all sizes each fitted with a deep keel and a compensating rudder which makes it possible to sail in any wind and in any weather. To the adult mind it was a place full of interest—the childish imagination it should prove a paradise.

Doubts as to what to buy for Xmas gifts may quite simply be solved by taking a "look-see" around the new Jewellery Department, which, pending removal to the commodious premises in the Hongkong Hotel building, is situated on the same floor as the toys are to be found. There is here a glittering display of Jewellery, silverware and cut-glass of all descriptions. Dainty boudoir clocks, gold and platinum mesh bags, a huge array of gold and silver cigarette cases, diamond rings and diamond bracelets, vanity cases, photo-frames, toilet and manicure sets—the list is endless, or at any rate so it seemed with so superb a display.

A show case displaying an excellent assortment of fancy leather goods invites attention in the Men's Outfittings Department. Pocket wallets, cigarette and cigar cases, jewel boxes, dressing cases, travelling requisites and the like here suggested themselves as suitable Yuletide gifts of menfolk, to say nothing of a wide choice of neckties, scarves, Jaeger "woolies" and what not.

One of the busiest sections of the store during the next few weeks is sure to be the provision department whose display of Xmas fare is calculated literally to make one's mouth water.

AT SINCERE'S.

GIFTS THAT WILL CHARM.

Though the Chinese themselves are not particularly interested in Christmas, any more than we are in some of their red-letter festivals, big stores like Sincere's who number many Europeans amongst their clientele do not let the Yuletide season slip by unnoticed. So it is that the Sincere Company's windows are beginning to take on a festive air which challenges comparison with their European rivals. In addition to toys and Xmas fare Sincere's have an unrivalled selection of suitable gifts in the shape of Ivoryware and Jewellery of all descriptions.

SUITABLE SUITINGS.

WHERE MESSRS. HAWTHORNE AND PEARSON EXCEL.

A new suit seems a good sort of Xmas gift to make to oneself and here, in order to obtain satisfaction, one need not go further, surely, than the commodious tailoring establishment of Messrs. Hawthorne and Pearson in Ice House Street, next door to the Café Wiseman. They offer a fine choice of winter suitings, both tweed and saxon, and of materials for overcoats and the indispensable sports coat they display a wide range.

One feature about the work turned out by the firm which should commend itself to the man who is particular about his clothes, is that it is all done by hand on the premises under the personal supervision of the proprietors and they are alone responsible for every bit of the cutting. Fashion plates are procured from Saville Row at regular intervals so that Messrs. Hawthorne and Pearson's customers may rely upon getting the latest styles. Speaking of styles, Mr. Hawthorne told a China Mail man who questioned him on the subject, that there had been no great changes in men's fashions lately. "All that has happened," he said, "is that the three-button style has dropped out in favour of the two-button style with a roll lapel. The vent in the back has quite disappeared."

PEARLS AND PARIS CREATIONS.

One imagines it would be a neat stroke of policy for wives to encourage their husbands to patronise the establishment of Messrs. Hawthorne and Pearson for is not the well-stocked salon of Madeleine Pearson housed in another premises? What more natural than that while hubby is selecting his new suit his better half should chance upon a gown which matches it so beautifully that under the circumstances no self-respecting husband could do other than make her a present of it then and there as a Yuletide gift.

The progress made by the salon Madeleine Pearson has, considering its short career, been nothing short of phenomenal. Two years ago it was begun in a small room hidden away on the first floor of Union Buildings. Even in that secluded spot it was eagerly sought out by a fast growing clientele and eventually a move had to be made to the premises in Ice House Street now occupied by Anderson's Music Store. Even that proved too small and this centre of fashion was finally transferred to its present spacious home where something like $35,000 worth of hats and gowns are either on show or waiting to be displayed whenever there is room enough. That these alluring creations come direct from Paris bespeaks their style and quality; prices, one is assured, are fairly reasonable.

On view in the salon at present is a display of "Cintre" pearls made up into necklaces, brooches, ear drops and various other things. One can well credit the statement that only the most experienced experts can detect the difference between these and pearls costing perhaps 100 times as much or more.

WHAT TO DO WHEN IN THE DUMPS.

Put on your best suit—go for a brisk walk—take two or three Pinkettes when you get to bed—you'll surely feel 10% brighter, cheerier and better in the morning. To dispel the causes of low spirits such as constipation, liver troubles, bilious attacks or sick headaches Pinkettes are perfection. Your chemist sells them, or post free 60 cents the trial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

MUSIC AND MELODY.

FOR OLD AND YOUNG.

Most of us can recall what gramophones were like twenty years ago when, if one remembers rightly, they were called not gramophones but phonographs. You popped a sort of wax cylinder into the machine and, after a vigorous cranking up, sat back to wait for results. A pronounced whirring grew into a croaking noise like somebody with a very bad cough trying to clear his throat and finally a harsh voice announced what the record would be about. It was often quite necessary that the audience should get that information beforehand.

All that is changed now and how big have been the strides made in perfecting the phonographic art! A visit to the Anderson Music Co.'s establishment in Ice House Street, opposite the Café Wiseman, makes abundantly clear. Not only have they a very big selection of the new process "Columbia" records, which completely eliminate the irritating noise of the needle gliding over the record, but they are able to show you what is reckoned to be the last word in phonographs—the New Columbia model. Equipped with a motor which is in itself a marvel of mechanical perfection, the New Columbia is fitted with a new reproducer that is hailed as the crowning triumph of phonograph acoustics. These new developments make possible the reproduction of tone, pitch and voice with far greater fidelity—and all noticeably free from the blur of objectionable surface sounds. Amongst Messrs. Anderson's fine stock of "Columbia" records music lovers will find all the well-loved ballads, the famous arias, the lilt and swing of dance music, songs of the violin and cello, the surging harmonies of great orchestras—all the music, in short, that they most delight in.

So much for the grown-up music lovers—Messrs. Anderson have something which will appeal to the youngsters as well. There are neat little miniature records which illustrate vividly the fairy tales and nursery rhymes held within the pages of beautifully got-up little picture books and there are also the dainty little Bubble Books "that sing." Each one has three miniature "Columbia" records, just like the ordinary ones but smaller. They can, of course, be played on any phonograph.

Messrs. Anderson have a big selection of music and song albums of all descriptions and they also stock instrumental accessories.

FOR OVERSEAS FRIENDS.

ORIENTAL GOODS.

Oriental goods have a strong appeal at all times. When Christmas comes this appeal increases tenfold. Shoppers will therefore welcome the suggestions Messrs. Fook Weng & Co., Ltd., make in their advertisement in this issue. Situated in the Astor House Building, 13, Queen's Road Central, Messrs. Fook Weng & Co. have a wide range of tempting wares, including hand-made Swatow drawn threadwork and Canton embroideries, silk goods, laces and motifs Mandarin costumes, shawls, capes and scarves, cloisonne, ivory, pottery and porcelain ware, fancy goods, toys and curios.

Stops Croup.

It stops croup. That's why mothers keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. It contains no narcotics and is best for the children. For sale everywhere.

XMAS MUSIC.

MOUTRIE'S TASTEFUL DISPLAY.

"There should be music in every home on Christmas morn" is the motto and motto of Messrs. Moutrie and Co.'s extremely tasteful window display in Chater Road. A partly opened package disclosing a glimpse of a handsome "Victrola" suggests that there can only be one answer, an emphatic affirmative, to the question propounded by an adjoining showcard—"Will there be a Victrola in your home this Xmas?" In another window the names of a number of famous stars in the musical firmament—Caruso, Rachmaninoff, Elman, etc., all of whom are featured on "Victrola" records—are, by an ingenious electrical arrangement, illuminated in rotation. Messrs. Moutrie have a big selection of Xmas Music to choose from as well as all the latest dance records.

USEFUL GIFTS.

EVERYTHING ELECTRICAL.

"Everything Electrical!" This slogan makes it almost unnecessary to say anything about the splendid display in the Electrical Department of the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels Ltd. in Queen's Road Central. Here are useful and artistic gifts aplenty—gifts that will prove specially welcome in this cold weather. Toasters, waffle irons, radiators, hot plates, chafing dishes, torches, radio sets, tea pots, kettles, milk warmers, and desk lamps—these are but a few of the tempting wares displayed. "Everything electrical!" The slogan is enough; you must see for yourself.

SMOKES FOR GIFTS.

CHOICE CIGARETTES.

The British-American Tobacco Company (China) Limited, have an unusually choice selection of Wills' well-known brand of Three Castles cigarettes. The world-famed firm of W. D. & H. O. Wills, of Bristol and London, through their local office, can supply magnum and ordinary sizes in tins of 50 and the latter in 20's in packets. A sweeter tobacco comes from Virginia and no more ideal present could be round for the discriminating smoker than a case of these choice cigarettes.

FOR MOTORISTS.

SENSIBLE PRESENTS.

If your friend is a motorist—if you are a motorist yourself—you can make few better Christmas purchases than motor spirit. "Shell" is too famous to require praise at this stage. The exploits which it has helped to make possible belong to history—the flight across the Atlantic, the flight to Australia, and the flight across Africa; also the recent successes in the glider contest at Lympne.

Tickling Throat.

Did you ever have that nerve-racking experience caused by a bit of mucus or phlegm that stubbornly refuses to be dislodged, but tickles and tickles until it sometimes almost strangles? Just a few sips of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, swallowed very slowly and allowed to glide down the throat, will stop that tickle and at once give you immense relief. Try it that way too for hoarseness, tracheitis and other coughs. For sale everywhere.

USEFUL GIFTS.

HARDWARE FOR HOME.

At the firm of E. Hing & Co., No. 25, Wing Wo Street, can be found a fine selection of hardware of all descriptions. To those about to found a home, a complete outfit can be purchased at this store and the young home-maker would be sure to appreciate such a gift for Christmas, whereby he can start the New Year with a thoroughly reliable set of household utensils for kitchen and pantry.

GOOD CHEER.

MANY CHOICE WINES.

What is Christmas without good cheer? The question requires no answer. Nor does the other query "What is good cheer without good wine?" As Messrs. Nam Hing Loong apply put it in their advertisement in this issue, "say it with wine!" Messrs. Nam Hing Loong have a large stock of choice wines. Their address is 97-99, Queen's Road Central.

AN ARTISTIC SHOP.

MESSRS. SENNET FRERES' NEW PREMISES.

Hongkong has many beautiful shops but surely there are few nicer than that just opened by Messrs. Sennet Freres in the fine new building now gracing the Old Post Office site. This well-known firm of jewellers and diamond merchants long had their premises in Queen's Road where their familiar clock will now be sadly missed. When the expansion of the Hongkong Hotel Company made it necessary for Messrs. Sennet Freres to face a removal they secured premises in the new Pedder Street building. Their enterprise did not stop here, however, for they have made their new shop, as we have said above, one of the most elegant in the Colony. Even the casual passer-by can see this. The name boards, the well-known clock, and the tastefully arranged windows all delight the eye. Inside the appearance is even more pleasing. The fittings, artistically designed, are made from a dark wood that throws into shining relief the goods displayed. Moving into this fine new shop, Messrs. Sennet Freres have brought with them a notable stock of jewellery, cut glass, silver ware and kindred goods, and these offer a very wide range for the Christmas shopper. Although they are now established in their new premises, Messrs. Sennet Freres will still keep open their old shop in Queen's Road until the end of the month. Their sale there will still go on and here again the Christmas shopper will find a wide range for buying presents.

CHURCH NOTES.

THE SECOND SUNDAY IN ADVENT.

THE EPISTLE.

The message of the Epistle is Hope. The passage is taken from St. Paul's letter to the Romans, towards the close of which he is pleading for the exercise of forbearance between Christian people. He is endeavouring to persuade those, who were by nature liberal-minded, to recognize and to sympathize with those who were over scrupulous about small matters. The Apostle makes his position perfectly clear. Those who are strong in faith should be ready to submit to certain disabilities for the sake of their weaker brethren. For all Christians must be willing to place themselves under the obligation of love. It is not with a man like personally in matters of minor detail, that he should consider, but what is of most service to his friends. "For Christ also pleased not Himself." And this characteristic of the Saviour was foreseen in the Scriptures that were written down that we thought patience might have hope.

By the Scriptures St. Paul means the Old Testament. In his eyes it had a two-fold value. In the first place it contained great moral and spiritual truths; in the second it continually bore witness to Christ. Now it is the second purpose of Scripture which brings hope to the reader. For it reveals the world as fulfilling a purpose directed and guided by God. The writers of the Old Testament looked forward through long periods of overwhelming troubles and distress to a clearly defined climax, the coming of the Messiah. Again and again occasions arose when the prospect was darkened, and there seemed to be no likelihood of a happy issue. Many there were in these periods of depression who fainted by the way and abandoned their purpose. The Israelites, who came out of Egypt in the Exodus, died in the desert; those who were carried away captive to Babylon took to trade, and sought consolation for the loss of national hopes in commercial prosperity, but throughout the long and checkered career of the children of Israel there was always the little band who refused to give up hope, who "Never doubted clouds would break,

"Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph,
"Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better, sleep, to wake."
Overwhelmed as they were by the facts of life which they were called upon to face, their hopes were finally vindicated when Jesus Christ was born in the stable at Bethlehem. That great fact, so simple in its outward aspect was the proof that their hopes had never been in vain, and so that Apostle directs the minds of his readers to the conception of God as a God of hope, who could fill them with all joy and peace in believing, and make them also abound more and more in hope through the power of the Holy Ghost.

THE GOSPEL.

The Gospel comes from that section of St. Luke which contains the eschatological teaching of Jesus, that is, the teaching concerning the end of the world. In the life of almost everyone there comes a point, sooner or later, when it is realized that the conditions of this present world can never fulfil the ultimate needs of a spiritual creature. Disillusionment is an inevitable process, the sooner it comes the better; if a man has passed through it he is unfitted for the hard tasks of life, for he is unable to distinguish the things that really matter from those that are indifferent; both his ideas and his actions are too much like those of the dreamer, unsubstantial and inconclusive.

The school may in its institutions foreshadow the world in mimicry; it may be described as "the little commonwealth," but none the less useful as the mimicry may be in the training of character, it must be recognized that it is only play-acting and not the real thing. So in its turn to the thoughtful mind the world takes the place of the school, and in this way it ceases to be regarded as an end in itself, and becomes instead the preparation, in that which is partial and imperfect, for that which shall some day be realized as a fuller stage of spiritual development.

Now our Lord warned us that the change from the earlier to the later stage will be catastrophic, and it is indeed very difficult to think of it as occurring in any other way. For the slow and gradual extinction of human life upon this earth of ours would almost inevitably involve a deterioration of character quite unsuitable to the purpose which God has always in view. The individual grows old, it is true, but he does this in the midst of that younger-life which is shooting up all around him, and so it is possible for him to retain his freshness of mind and of heart, even while his bodily powers are declining. But from what sources could a decaying world have its inspiration? Must it not like Prospero's "insubstantial pageant" dissolve and leave not a rack behind? Such at least is the teaching of our Lord Jesus Christ. The material universe will come to a sudden end, but spiritual truths will only stand out more firmly and more clearly in the foreground of a dissolving world. "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away."

O living with that shalt endure
When all that seems shall suffer shock,
Rise in the spiritual rock,
Flow through our deeds and make them pure,
That we may lift from out of dust
A voice as unthorn that hears,
A cry above the conquer'd years
To one that with us works, and trust,
With faith that comes of self-control
The truths that never can be proved
Until we close with all we loved,
And all we flow from, soul in soul.

ST. LUCY, DECEMBER 13TH.

From early youth Lucy, a young Syracuse maiden of wealthy parentage was betrothed by her relations to a young Pagan noble. Her mother Eutychia, though she brought Lucy up in the Christian Faith, did not seem to realize the impossibility of such a union though Lucy secretly vowed to remain a virgin and dedicate herself to the service of Christ alone. As the time for marriage drew near Eutychia was stricken by an illness which none of the doctors she consulted could cure and Lucy persuaded her to journey to Cantania and pray for health at the tomb of St. Agatha where it was numbered many miracles had been wrought. As they entered the Church, the Gospel being read was of the poor woman who had "suffered many things of many physicians and grew nothing better but rather worse" and Lucy whispered in her mother's ear to take courage and rely on the mercy of the Great Physician. When the service was over, legend tells us that Lucy and her mother prostrated themselves before the shrine of St. Agatha beseeching her prayers. While praying Lucy fell into a trance and beheld St. Agatha in robes of dazzling light (surrounded by a host of Angels) who asked her why they sought her aid since Lucy herself, the faithful bride of Christ, could gain health for her mother through her own pure and faithful prayers. Then Lucy awoke and spoke: "You are healed my mother, but as God has given you health, grant me this grace never more to speak to me of marriage but to leave me free to give myself wholly to the Lord." Her mother having granted her request they returned home, sold their jewels and costly furniture and estates and distributed this wealth among the poor, ransoming captives, delivering prisoners and giving freely to all in need. When the Pagan noble learnt that Lucy desired the engagement broken, his love turned to hate, and he went and denounced her as a Christian to the governor—the young maiden was exposed to public infamy but God shielded her and she stood immovable. Oken were bound to her by ropes and great force brought, but nothing could move her from where she stood. Then a great fire was kindled around her but the flames also had no power over her—as she stood surrounded by the tongues of fire, she comforted her fellow Christians telling them the persecutions would soon end. This prophecy was fulfilled when a few years later Constantine became Emperor. At last St. Lucy was martyred at the stroke of a poulard, and the "maiden of light" entered into the joy of her Lord.

HOME ELECTIONS.

WOMEN CANDIDATES ROUTED.

LONDON, December 7. Eleven women were defeated yesterday, including the Labourite Miss Jessie Stephen by the Conservative. Major H. R. Cayzer, at Portsmouth. To-day's declarations opened sensationally with a Liberal gain at Basingstoke, shortly followed by the announcement that Miss Margaret Bondfield had gained Northampton for Labour in a triangular fight, the Rt. Hon. Mr. C. A. McCurdy, ex-Coalition Liberal Whip, being bottom of the poll. Capt. W. G. A. Ormsby-Gore, the Under-Secretary for the Colonies, has been re-elected.

PARTY GAINS AND LOSSES.
At 4.30 this morning the parties stood as follows:
Conservatives..... 111
Liberals..... 69
Labour..... 78
Independents..... 6

The gains were—Conservatives 3, Liberals 31, Labour 30. The net losses of the Conservatives were 41 seats, and net gains of Liberals 19 and Labour 22.

The state of the parties at 12.30 p.m. was:

Conservatives..... 122
Liberals..... 82
Labour..... 82
Independents..... 6

At 1 p.m. the state of the parties was:

Conservatives..... 136
Liberals..... 70
Labour..... 91
Independents..... 6

At 1.30 p.m. the position was as under:

Conservatives..... 166
Liberals..... 75
Labour..... 106
Independents..... 7

The gains were 5 Conservatives, 40 Liberals, 37 Labour; and the losses 55 by Conservatives, 15 Liberals, 11 Labour and one Independent.

LABOUR NEXT TIME.

Mr. J. R. Clynes, learning of his election for the seventh time, declared that the result indicated that the Labour Party before long would not be His Majesty's Opposition, but His Majesty's Government.

Mr. Churchill stated that whatever might be the consequences, he would never associate himself with the violent movement of the Left nor the extreme reaction of the Right. He was certain from the results that Protection was broken in pieces.

Mr. Asquith, loudly cheered, stated that Paisley was the impregnable citadel of Liberalism and the Liberals all over the country were routing both Protection and Socialism.

CONSERVATIVES DISAPPOINTED.

The Conservatives admit a degree of disappointment at the first day's results, especially the adverse turnover, which was accentuated not only in Manchester, but Lancashire generally. Nevertheless, 350 results remain to be announced, a large proportion of them in county districts traditionally Conservative, where the Government supporters profess confidence they have strengthened their hold by the policy of agricultural subsidy.

Major Cayzer has been re-elected for Portsmouth South.

Major General Sir F. H. Sykes, Conservative, has been re-elected for Hallam with an increased majority. His majority at the last election was 4,332.

Sir A. Shirley Benn, Conservative, Plymouth, has had his majority reduced by nearly 3,000. His majority at the last election was 3,339.

Major the Rt. Hon. Sir J. L. Baird, Conservative, has been re-elected for Ayr with a reduced majority.

MAJORITY REDUCED.
Mr. G. Locker-Lampson, Conservative, has been re-elected for Woodgreen. His majority has been reduced by 9,000. At the last election his majority was over 12,000.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain has been re-elected.

The Labourite Mr. Young has gained Exeter in a triangular contest, defeating Mr. Allan Smith, Conservative Free Trader and Mr. McCallum Scott, Liberal; while the Labourite Mr. Ben Smith gained Rotherhithe against a Conservative and Liberal.

Mr. Fletcher Moulton, Liberal, gained Salisbury, defeating a Conservative; and a Liberal, Mr. Mitchell, similarly gained Perth.

BIRMINGHAM PRO-GOVERNMENT.
Sir Steel Matland has been elected at Birmingham, which is proving staunch Government.

Lt.-Colonel L. C. M. S. Amery (Conservative) was returned with an increased majority at Sparbrook, thus making Birmingham solid pro-Government, but Mr. Neville Chamberlain's majority was reduced to 1,544.

Mr. Baldwin's majority at Bewdley was increased to 5,369. (At the last election the Premier polled 11,192 votes to 5,749 cast for Mr. Sadiqi Hancock, Liberal.)

Mr. Ramsey MacDonald has been re-elected with an increased majority.

In the Westbury (Wilts) Division Mr. C. W. Darbyshire, Liberal, retained the seat. The polling was:

Mr. C. W. Darbyshire (Liberal)..... 10,867
Captain Shaw (Conservative)..... 9,891
Mr. George Ward (Labour)..... 4,372
[At the last election Mr. Darbyshire polled 9,903 votes, Sir General G. L. Palmer (Conservative) 9,262, and Mr. George Ward 4,572.]

LOSS OF "TREVESA."

LONDON, December 7. The Board of Trade enquiry into the loss of the "Trevesa" in the Indian Ocean on June 4 found that the vessel sank through springing a leak, but that there was no evidence to justify a positive finding in regard to the cause. It did not consider any individual blame worthy as the boats were properly equipped and fine seamanship was displayed by the officers and crew.

CHINA RELIEFS.

NEW CREWS FOR THE "DURBAN" AND "MAGNOLIA."

LONDON, December 7. The light cruiser "Weymouth," en route to the China Station with relief crews for the light cruiser "Durban" and the sloop "Magnolia," leaves Sheerness on the 15th inst., reaches Colombo on the 21st. January and arrives at Singapore, where she meets the "Durban" and "Magnolia" on the 1st February.

MEXICAN REVOLT.

NEW YORK, December 7. According to despatches received from Vera Cruz, Mexico, five Mexican States are in open rebellion against President Obregon. They have repudiated the Federal Government and replaced Federal officers by their own.

The Commander of the Gulf fleet, the Chief of Marines and General Guadalupe Sanchez have written to President Obregon, stating that they are resolved to defend the institutions against which the Obregon Government is offending in violating the sovereignty of States and refusing to permit the free functioning of their legislative powers. Two columns of rebel troops comprising six thousand men are advancing on Mexico City. Fifteen thousand additional men are concentrated at Vera Cruz. All strategic positions have been reinforced.

VERA CRUZ, December 7.
The rebel movement has already spread to nine states and the entire oil region of Tampico and Huasteca. Loyal troops are now in contact with the rebels.

Fifteen Mexican Deputies arrived here with a view of establishing a Congress and the designation of a provisional President.

MEXICO CITY, December 7.
President Obregon has arrived at Toluca from Celaya and is proceeding to Chapultepec Castle for a Cabinet Conference. The President declares that the country must be pacified and the rebellion suppressed with an iron hand. It is reported from San Luis-Potosi that Federal troops disarmed the State forces and have crushed the rebellion there.

COOLIDGE'S ADDRESS.
NEW YORK, December 7. The morning papers consider that the President's message is a model of clearness but comment on his sentiments on the various questions strictly in accordance with their own political leanings. The New York Times says that the message reveals President Coolidge as a man of first class political ability who steps forward as the inevitable leader of his party. The Tribune thinks it would be difficult to state the case for the World Court more succinctly or more forcibly. The World declares that the President's attitude towards foreign affairs briefly put is "we mean mightily well but what we mean I cannot quite say." It adds that President Coolidge admits that America has a direct interest in the recovery of Europe but has nothing to say regarding how that interest should be made effective.

MESSAGE BROADCASTED.
NEW YORK, December 7. By means of broadcasting millions of Americans heard President Coolidge deliver his message to Congress. They caught every phrase and cheered with Senators and Congressmen. President Coolidge's accents could be heard coming from the open doorways of transoms in scores of New York shops.—American Service.

COMMERCIAL NOTES

FLOUR MARKET COMMENT.

Stocks of flour in the Colony at present are comparatively small. Chinese importers are of the opinion that price should have moved up had it not been for the large quantities of "futures" sold in the last few months. Buyers of these lots are underquoting the importers. Inquiries for "spot" lots are not numerous. On the other hand, both buyers and sellers are adopting a "wait and see" policy as regards transactions in "futures," for which average quotations are for clearance in two months about five or six cents H.K. currency per 50 lbs. sack lower than "spot." There is no change to record in the prices given yesterday. It is mentioned that import freight is scarce and difficult to book.

JAVA SUGAR.

Buyers of No. 24 rough white Java sugar were inactive yesterday but prices remain steady. Every body seems to be taking a short "breather" before engaging in further deals.

RICE MARKET.

A slight improvement set in in the local rice market yesterday and a firm tone still prevails. Prices in Nam Pak Hong have gone up about four cents per picul. Quite a number of small lots were bought for up-country.

MANCHESTER COMMENT.

Messrs. Morreau & Spiegelberg report under date October 31:—

Cotton.—The upward tendency reported in ours of the 17th inst. continues although the unsteadiness of cotton is an embarrassing factor to any volume of turnover being recorded.

Yarns.—Americans are stiffening in price, but only a moderate trade has been done. A fair amount of trade has gone through in Egyptian at full prices.

Cloth.—The rapid advance of cotton is reflected on this section of the market, and in consequence the offers made last week are now quite unacceptable.

Calcutta is enquiring for considerable quantities of dhotees and grey shirtings, and some business is reported, chiefly in moderate quantities. Madras offers are being received but there is not a great deal about for Bombay, and Karachi is said to be in the boycott mood.

For China business in greys, bleachers, sheetings and fancies is reported, but offers are in most cases too low in view of the rising market. However, considerable quantities are reported to have been brought to book.

Java is open to buy only very cheap lots. Singapore wants dhotees and bleachers, and the Levant greys and fancies, while Egypt is open for Whites at unacceptable rates.

Heavy goods are spoken of for the home trade and fancies for South America.

"FEWER AND BETTER."

THE MOTTO OF MODERN MOVIELAND.

The recent announcement of a famous film of motion picture producers that they will close down temporarily, as in their opinion the industry is suffering from the effects of over-production, puts the matter of cinema development right into the limelight.

Not many months ago the leading men in Movieland decided that the Great Public were demanding "Better Pictures," and, in spite of the natural exploitation of the phrase in advertising their products, they did proceed to present quite a number of films that are far in advance of the previous art.

Now the trend is to cut down the number of productions per annum, and increase the time and trouble taken upon films, so that where some studios a few years ago put out, say, 52 films a year, they will not attempt to make more than ten or a dozen under the new system.

The amount of research and technical advice necessary for a first class photoplay would surprise the average visitor to the cinema. Added to this is the work-entailed in preparing the huge sets, and rehearsing the crowds of actors; matters that call for men of great ability and long experience.

From the financial point of view alone, therefore, it is not surprising to read the statement of the Company concerned in the innovation that their aim from now on will be to make motion pictures that in the fullest of time will enjoy just as lasting a reputation as any play presented on the spoken stage. Very few films at present flourish for long, and costs are so prohibitive that a "failure" is an enormous loss. "Fewer and Better" pictures, they claim, will mean more satisfaction and a more enduring entertainment for the public—and, one may presume, a more certain recompense to the producer.

WAY DOWN EAST.

STILL CONSIDERED
GRIFFITH'S BEST.

Judging by the surprising success that has attended the "return" of Griffith's "Way Down East" to the cinemas in the larger cities of Europe and America, the general run of movie goers have still a very warm place in their heart for the picture that proved a sensation upon its first presentation.

Many people who make a point of seeing all Griffith's pictures contend that "Way Down East" is still his best production. Others, they say, may be more spectacular, or more dramatic in incident. But they claim that for straightforward, moving narration of a simple story "Way Down East" has no rival.

It is certain that the human appeal in the picture goes to the heart of all classes. For many years the stage play enjoyed universal popularity, but when Griffith presented his big film it was generally conceded that he had far surpassed the original.

There are no laboured efforts to "thrill" in the film. Yet, at the same time it contains a final scene that is even yet the most exciting and breath-taking ever shown. The rescue of the unconscious girl from the drifting ice floe is based upon fact, and has the advantage of being a natural development of the story.

"Way Down East" is to remain the model for its enormous and enduring success.

MARY'S NEW "TESS."

CALLED HER FINEST
PICTURE.

"The crowning achievement of Mary Pickford's career," declared Hiram Abrams, president of United Artists' Corporation, as the final scene in Miss Pickford's new reproduction of that famous screen classic, "Tess of the Storm Country," flashed across the silver-sheet at a recent private showing in New York for Miss Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, and others in the Pickford-Fairbanks party. This verdict was indorsed unanimously by all who saw Miss Pickford's own version and own re-creation, just completed, of one of her early picture triumphs.

Miss Pickford's reproduction of "Tess of the Storm Country," probably marks the first time in the industry that any great star has seen fit to remark in later years, and as an independent producer, a photoplay which earlier had served as one of the big steps toward placing her in the very forefront of cinema artists.

Miss Pickford is said to have taken full advantage of every one of the tremendous improvements in photoplay making that have come into the industry since the first "Tess of the Storm Country" was made. Even the story itself, from that widely read novel by Grace Miller White, is considered vastly improved upon under Miss Pickford's personal handling, while in the matter of direction, settings, art work and photography, this reproduction is so far superior to the original of eight years ago as to defy comparison and beggar description.

ONE EXCITING NIGHT.

GRIFFITH SCORES WITH DRAMA.

David W. Griffith's screen thriller, "One Exciting Night" is a picture that in every way lives up to its name. To the legion of film fans who have followed the Griffith flag in the past, his new offering will appear much of a departure from his usual paths, but they will have to admit that he has achieved the seemingly impossible in producing a picture that combines the elements of love, mystery, burlesque, and melodrama and woven a story that is as full of thrills as a coconut is full of meat.

It has an appeal for virtually every class of theatre-goer, for it contains all the elements that go to make up a complete whole. While it is not a spectacular film, like "Intolerance" nor an historical production like "Orphans of the Storm," he has shown that he is capable of constructing a detective drama that has the same skill in making as an historical narrative, and, at the same time, offer an entertainment that is typically Griffithesque. To do this properly, however, there must be at least one scene that will leave its impress upon the audience. In "One Exciting Night" it is the storm scene, one of the most realistic tempests ever simulated upon stage or screen. The photography in it is superb. Flying branches and streaming rain fill the air, huge trees are uprooted, and the howl of the wind and the concussion of the thunderbolts is given with a graphic intensity that cause the most hardened theatre-goer to gasp with excitement. It gives opportunity for some of the most gripping moments of the story, as well, when the heroine, in pursuit of the mysterious villain, plunges through the confusion, and is herself rescued by the hero.

Carol Dempster heads the cast, with Henry Hull, who also gives a fine performance. Miss Dempster does some remarkable work, and her agility in the storm scene is little short of amazing. Morgan Wallace does fine work as an elderly scoundrel, and the rest of the players are well cast.

COOGAN FILM PERFECT.

To one not familiar with life in Egypt, the mistakes of a director filming Egyptian episodes and never having visited Egypt, would be unimportant. But to many people visiting the motion picture theatre, the mistakes of a director laying his episodes in London, would be painfully apparent.

Frank Lloyd, who directed Jackie Coogan in Charles Dickens' masterpiece, "Oliver Twist," was selected primarily because he is recognized by all picturegoers as one of the finest directors in the industry.

Another quality that rendered Lloyd the logical man to transcribe

PROGRAMME FEATURES.

Coronet—"Way Down East."

World—"Through A Glass Window."

Star—"Carmen"

Grand—"Dead Game."

"Oliver Twist" from the pages of a book to the screen of picture theatres was his love for and knowledge of children. Lloyd knows how to get along with juvenile folk and to make them love him heartily and without restraint.

But the final fact that rendered Frank Lloyd the inevitable choice for the difficult "role" of directing the great production was his knowledge of the London not only of to-day but of the Dickens period as well.

"TROUBLE."

JACKIE COOGAN FILM THAT WILL PLEASE ALL AGES.

In "Trouble," Jackie Coogan's new picture, this human appeal is so strong that the genuine characters in the play cannot fail to meet with success before any type of audience.

The appeal is derived from many sources, but primarily from the unusual personality of the diminutive star, Jackie Coogan, who does the best work of his career enacting the orphan whose indomitable spirit will not be denied.

The story is slight, but it provides enough material for the little fellow in what might be termed episodic form to allow him to display his acting talent, which is considerable, as anybody knows who has seen him in his previous productions of his own or with Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid."

There is one scene in particular in which Jackie excels. In it his work is inspired, and many an older performer could profit by the lesson in pantomime art. This is the court room scene. It alone is worth the price of admission. But the little star does not need to rely upon this one effort for the success of the picture.

"Trouble" contains sentiment without being sentimental. There is a generous amount of humour of a quiet kind, and it is balanced with just the right amount of pathos, without bathos. The titles are especially well written, and are nicely placed in the action.

Master Coogan is surrounded by a group of players that includes Wallace Beery and Gloria Hope, who are practically the only ones who have large parts. Beery, as might be expected, is great as the rough neck plumber who won't work. Miss Hope is clever as his long suffering wife, who adopts the orphan. A young negro boy, who is not named in the cast, furnishes many laughs, and deserves mention.

"Trouble" reminds one of a circus. In "extrinsically" taking a youngster to it grown-ups have a good time themselves.

PLAYS WITH BRAINS.

MR. G. B. SHAW ON EFFECT OF CINEMA COMPETITION.

Mr. George Bernard Shaw has made the following reply to Miss Fay Compton's query whether the cinema threatens to out-dramas of action like "The Prisoner of Zenda" from the legitimate stage.

"When I began writing for the stage," Mr. Shaw says, "I was met with continual complaints that my plays contained dialogue. The critics were not used to it; they cried, 'These are not plays, they are all talk.' Our actors and actresses had nothing to say that mattered; they had to create the characters out of their own personality. They were wonderfully beautiful and fascinating, but they almost forgot how to speak; and some of them have not yet quite recovered the art."

"The drama, though it still kept up a tedious convention of giving the performers certain clichés to learn and repeat, was really a speechless drama; and most of the critics of that day had lost the faculty of listening, and could only gloat over the spectacle. The cinema was a godsend to them; they loved Mary Pickford, not for her charm, but for the blessed certainty that she would never say anything, and that they could still earn their living without thinking."

But the result was that the layers of speechless drama deserted the theatre and crowded the cinemas. The theatres found themselves forced to find plays that had something to say instead of something to show.

"In short, the cinema takes from the theatre only those plays that have no business there; and the resultant pressure on the theatres to find plays with some brains in them is of incalculable benefit to the drama."

NORMA REALISES
CHERISHED HOPE.

Norma Talmadge has registered many screen achievements starting under the First National releasing banner. One of her most successful pictures, it will be remembered, was the emotional Spanish drama, "The Passion Flower." More recently came her notable triumph in "Smilin' Through." But Miss Talmadge has not yet been fully satisfied with the semi-costume pictures she had appeared in. She was consumed with ambition to attempt a monumental all costume production, which ambition she has at last realized in "The Eternal Flame."

"The Eternal Flame" is an adaptation of Balzac's "La Duchesse de Langeais," which after months spent searching for a suitable story was decided upon as a fitting one for the versatile young star with its background of pomp and magnificence; its frivolities and heartaches. Therefore, she depicts the complex character of that notable court beauty and coquette, La Duchesse de Langeais.

Those who have studied Miss Talmadge's work and followed her steady growth as an actress of great emotional powers are looking forward with keen interest to this latest part she is enacting, for they are assured she will give a finish and flawless artistry to a role that will set graciously on her young shoulders.

For Norma Talmadge undeniably mixes beauty and personality with brains.

The Walter Isaacs, noted costumers of both the Eastern and Western Coasts, will hereafter look after the costuming of Norma Talmadge, for they have recently arrived in Hollywood and opened the Maison Israel out at United Studios, where Joseph M. Schenck has his producing units at work.

The one-woman shop is a unique establishment, especially since it has at its head so significant a personality in the realm of creative clothes as Mr. Israel. However, Miss Talmadge is far more interested in the widespread influence of her pictures because of this venture than she is at having a notable costumer and his staff numbered among her entourage for her own personal adornment.

Like all artists, she realizes the importance of a strict adherence to detail and period in not only her own creations but those of her casts. Now she announces that instead of keeping the shop for her own convenience and that of her sister, Constance, she intends to throw open its doors for the benefit of her company in order to perfect every detail of costume and design in her productions.

With this end in view, Mr. Israel will soon bring his New York headquarters to Los Angeles. "Norma" will be showing to limited groups and wraps, but will include the showings in other famous local spots, giving two buyers will be considerably in haste to and from New York and the fashion show.

REACTIONS OF A READER.

We cannot account for our reluctance to read Mrs. Mary Webb's novel, "Seven for a Doon," unless it was that the title struck us as illusive, a shade annoying. We are sensitive to titles; we like to like them. This one we could not remember when the book was out of reach, and you will agree that there is something amiss with such a title. You see, the average reader does not know that old lilted west country rhyme.

I saw seven magpies in a tree,
One for you and six for me.
One for sorrow,
Two for joy,
Three for a girl,
Four for a boy,
Five for silver,
Six for gold,
Seven for a secret
That's never been told.

Now that whatever number of praise the more discriminating of the reviewers recorded this book has long since been silenced, we discover that we like it rather better than most current novels. For one thing, it bears us out in a favorite conviction: that the English, by reason of their richer inheritance, can handle a story of this nature with a restraint still unattainable by the Americans. The English preserve sanity, power, balance, perspective. So horrible much depends upon the method. Seven for a Doon over to certain of the younger Americans and watch what they would make of it. Mrs. Webb gives us a picture of very real men and women, farming people of Shropshire, close to the Welsh border, painted against a setting of sheep-strewn purple moorland, haunted by gypsies and shimmering moonlight. The author uses her natural background as a protagonist in the story, in the manner of Thomas Hardy. Her characterization is masterly; her style has both charm and power; and so delicately does she touch upon the intertwined problems and frailties of human experience as never to be offensive or vulgar. The novel was worth coming so late.

Another book which we can imagine as having been written only by an Englishwoman is Miss Romer Wilson's "The Grand Tour." To call it a novel is a misnomer. It is rather an aggrandized and gilded "commonplace book," purporting to record the fleeting moods and experiences of a famous Parisian sculptor. Self-conscious and affected, of course, but perhaps any genius would be so if given full rein as was the fictitious Alphonse Marichand. Abnormally sensitive, too, to fine shadings of insight; of temperament, of personality. The book should be read slowly, laid away and lifted down only upon urgent impulse; for, read straight through, it surfeits. The sculptor is overbearing fastidious and sophisticated. Yet such a fragment as "Le Bloc d'Or," in which M. Hyacinthe Simon seeks to add the final to his success by ordering a bust of himself in marble, is superbly done.

There is now available another edition of Mr. Walter de la Mare's "Songs of Childhood," with illustrations by Estella Canziani. At first glance we did not see the justification, though of course there could never be too much of de la Mare. But as we looked further, we caught the cue. We found, we were thinking of William Blake, for the little drawings do recall his workmanship. Suddenly, too, we realized that it was fitting that Blake should come into our thought, that he and de la Mare are intellectual companions. What do centuries matter? Mr. de la Mare is assuredly more of Blake's generation than were his own contemporaries. We are convinced of it, particularly when he writes from the standing-ground of the child. These poems rouse the same response that do all of Mr. de la Mare's poems in the hearts of Blake lovers.

We have not yet read, "The Able MacLaughlins," Miss Margaret Wilson's prize novel; but we begin to think we must. For we heard one of its ardent admirers say that it is just the book for the younger generation, an excellent antidote to the run of modern fiction. As such it may even come with a rush of relief to their elders.

NEW NOVELS.

GOOD HUNTING.

(Chapman & Hall. 7s. 6d. net.)
Lively, caustic, witty, and wise, Mr. Norman Davy's new story will afford plenty of satisfaction to that large class of readers whose withers are unwrung by his satire. There will be other classes roughly, two in number, who will, perhaps, profess annoyance at his sincerity. There is, first, the young man about town, the eligible "parti," encouraged by scheming mothers, who is so confident of his own claims as to be perpetually afraid of getting "caught." And there is, on the other hand, the young girl trained in the belief that marriage is the only possible business of womanhood and fruitfully anxious as the years go by and no sufficiently ardent suitor presents himself to press his claims. Both these classes are graciously but effectually sacrificed by Mr. Davy's satirical penitence; and it is proverbially difficult to preserve one's sense of humour when one's own foibles are being exposed to the ridicule of the world. That man must, however, be a self-satisfied coxcomb indeed who is impervious to the genial good nature of Mr. Davy's travesty. And, as for the women of the tale, the author is so obviously head over heels in love with the lot of them that he is fairly sure of forgiveness, before they are half through his hero's odyssey of philandering.

"Good Hunting" is, to put it briefly, a satire on the modern marriage market, and on the unnatural hesitation which the financial aspect of marriage is apt to breed in an average sensitive temperament. Julian Carr, the young man hunted by these modern Dianas of the love-chase, is a very ordinary, wealthy, unimaginative specimen of manhood. Left to himself he would probably have made a good enough affair of matrimony; but he is overshadowed by the cloud of suspicion, and gradually begins to believe himself the beleaguered victim of a universal feminine siege. So, whenever his heart is sufficiently engaged, his unhappy judgment must needs plunge to the rescue, and switch him off upon another tack, just when an engagement appears imminent. And, indeed, he is not without excuse; for the young women who indulge themselves in the "good hunting" are, when all is said and done, a sad set of minxes. Whatever their breeding and sexual history, the advent of

Mr. Julian Carr sets them all in pursuit of the main chance; and it must be confessed that some of them stoop to sufficiently questionable manoeuvres in order to entangle Mr. Carr in his amatory talk. In fact, they all overreach themselves; even Bobbie, the engaging daughter of a peculiarly repulsive parson, who casts aside her last shred of modesty in the determination to display her charms to the gaze of her too obdurate chaperon. Mr. Carr, we begin to believe, is destined to perpetual bachelorhood; but at last, like the gay Lord Oxen of other years, he falls a victim to the "usual, creamy English girl," who is, none the less, not such a fool as she looks, since she is taking to herself a husband in order to cover her intrigues with another and a younger paramour. A sad cynic is Mr. Norman Davy, you may be tempted to say, but he is a thoroughgoing wit as well, and the bright, incisive spirit of his latest novel will, no doubt, increase the number of that enthusiastic public which lifted the author of "The Pilgrim of a Smile" into the front rank of favourite novelists within a few weeks of his first appearance at the libraries.

O. HENRY MEMORIAL STORIES.

(Heinemann. 7s. 6d. net.)

One approaches the fourth volume of O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories with both sympathy and admiration. Sympathy for the committee in their gigantic task of reading through and assessing the value of some hundreds of short stories; and admiration for the general success with which their efforts have been attended. The art of the short story is rare, and it is given to few people to possess that facility in it which marked the work of the master whose name this memorial perpetuates. Therefore it is easy enough to imagine, without the aid of the very interesting analytical introduction, the difficulties which confronted the committee in agreeing to the final selection of examples worthy of perpetuation in this book.

They have chosen sixteen, giving the first prize of $500 to Mr. Irvin S. Cobb's "Snake Doctor," the second of $250 to Mrs. Rose Wilder Lane's "Innocence," and a special prize of $100 to Mr. F. R. Buckle's "Gold Mounted Guns," three excellent examples of the American short story. Of the collection as a whole, it is unnecessary to say very much, bearing in mind the care and attention devoted to the work of selection. But the wise reader will find the series, good as it undoubtedly is, more enjoyable if he takes it slowly. The American short story is no more palatable than the common run of British efforts of the kind if taken in large doses.

VOLTAIRE AND GIBBON.

The one was fire and fickleness, a child, Most mutable in wishes, but in mind, A wit as various—gay, grave, sage or wild— Historian, bard, philosopher, combined. He multiplied himself among mankind, The Proteus of their talents; but his own Breathed most in ridicule—which, as the wind, Blew where it listed, laying all things prone— Now to overthrow a fool, and now to shake a throne.

The other, deep and slow, exhausting thought, And hiving wisdom with each studious year, In meditation dwelt, with learning wrought, And shaped his weapon with an edge severe, Sapping a solemn creed with solemn sneer; The lord of mercy—that master-spell, Which stung his foes to wrath, Which grew from fear, And doomed him to the zealot's ready hell, Which answer, to all doubts so eloquently well.

KELLY & WALSH, LIMITED.

CHATER ROAD, HONGKONG.

Mr. Clement K. Shorter, editor of the "Sphero," brought out some three years ago a collected edition of the Poems of Anne Brontë, through the firm of Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton. He has now prepared a couple of companion volumes containing the Complete Poems of Emily and Charlotte Brontë, arranged and collated with notes and bibliographical introductions by Mr. C. W. Hatfield. The poems of Emily Brontë have always been recognised by all instructed lovers of poetry, and this uniform edition of the lyrical work of all the Brontës is sure of a big public.

John Marley (recalls a British daily) grew up to manhood at a time of quite unusually splendid activity in English letters. The year, for instance, in which he took his degree at Oxford was surely one of the most prolific in literary history, for among the amazing stream of great books which succeeded each other month after month in 1850 were Darwin's "Origin of Species," Thackeray's "Virginians," Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities," Eliot's "Adam Bede," Meredith's "Ordeal of Richard Feverel," Henry Kingsley's "Geoffrey Hamlyn," Ruskin's "Two Paths," "Mill's Liberty," FitzGerald's translation of "Omar Khayyam," and Tennyson's "Idylls of the King." And in addition works of minor importance by writers like Mrs. Gaskell, Charles Kingsley, and Matthew Arnold were appearing regularly in various periodicals.

Graciously people, those literary critics! One of them has actually been daring, in an evening paper, to poke fun at the style of no less formidable a giant of the circulating library than Mr. A. S. M. Hutchinson. To support his tiresome attack, he went so far as to quote a single extraordinarily tortuous and involved sentence, consisting of no fewer than one hundred and thirty-six words, from Mr. Hutchinson's latest published volume of short stories. Really, it is hard to understand what some of these carping critics expect. It is coming to something, indeed, when they presume to demand perfect literary style and impeccable English as part of the necessary equipment of a best-seller!

Mr. Rudyard Kipling is to issue a new book. The title is "Land and Sea Tales for Boys and Girls," consisting of sixteen poems and stories, all hitherto unpublished.

SCREENLAND.

COMEDY DRAMA.

AMUSING WORLD PICTURE.

The Universal, entertainment at the World Theatre is a new sort of flapper yarn. As "Don't Get Personal," Marie Prevost flits charmingly through the stellar role of a comedy drama directed by Clarence Badger.

The story is by I. B. Ving and Doris Schroeder concerns a young and fascinating girl of the Great White Way who strays into the peaceful paths of a millionaire's country estate. What she learns there would make the average New York girl look like a pig in the way of worldly wisdom.

The reason for this sudden acquisition of knowledge is that the sweet thing tries to save a harmless young man from the wiles of an alluring vamp. Why she does it Cupid only knows—and Cupid is too mad to talk about it. He doesn't like strangers butting in on his match-making profession.

With T. Roy Barnes and Roy Atwell in the main masculine roles and George Nichols—the father of "Molly-O"—in the chief character part, it ought to offer a snappy, free-for-all rummy flapper fun.

Ralph McCullough, Alida B. Jones, Daisy Robinson, Sadie Gordon and Del Loria are the principal players supporting Miss Prevost.

FORCEFUL WRITER.

THIRD NORRIS STORY FILMED.

Bessie Barriscale, by her choice of the third in a series of Kathleen Norris stories, for use on the screen, has given this popular writer of magazine stories and serials the same endorsement which the editors of the best American publications began consistently to give her about ten years ago.

In "The Luck of Geraldine Laird," which will be seen here at the World Theatre for 3 days starting on Sunday, Miss Barriscale puts on the screen the story which Mrs. Norris gave the reading world under the same title.

Mrs. Norris comes from that part of the country, where the motion pictures have birth—California. She was born there about forty years ago, and so finds herself very successful at the age when the novelist usually is just beginning to come to his own. She was educated in California by private tutors and by her parents. Later she attended the University of California, where she took special literary courses.

Her maiden name was Kathleen Thompson. She changed it April 30, 1909, when she was married to Charles Gilman Norris, of San Francisco. With marriage came the inspiration to write and she began to contribute to the Atlantic Monthly, McClure's, the American, Everybody's, the Ladies' Home Journal and other magazines in the next two or three years. Within five years after publication of her first stories she had started to write serials, and had gained a wide public.

MISS BARRISCALE'S APPRECIATION. Among her longer stories, which won success when printed in magazines, and which later appeared in book form were "Mother," and "Saturday's Child." The first story of hers which was chosen for screen use by Bessie Barriscale was "The Heart of Rachel." Soon after Miss Barriscale purchased the rights to "Joseph's Wife," and "The Luck of Geraldine Laird" followed. Miss Barriscale finds something particularly suited to her talents in Mrs. Norris' stories, and will continue to put them on the screen, having her eye now on one which is still going through the reading magazine.

MISS DEAN'S BEST.

DYNAMIC STAR WINS NEW LAURELS.

The real triumph of Priscilla Dean's career is coming to the World Theatre soon.

It is "The Flame of Life," an adaptation of one of Frances Hodgson Burnett's famous novels and was filmed under Hobart Henley's direction as a Universal-Jewel special.

With coal smeared face, a masculine rigidity in carriage, a pathetic toll drop to the shoulders and the face lines of a human beast of burden, Miss Dean has achieved a characterization of consummate artistry.

Not a single pretty gown, not even a good looking working dress does she wear, for the days of the story are 1870, and the locale is the coalier country of Northern England. Even at the last her climax finds her in a plain black gown and funny peaked hat.

There is a thrill element in the story, but it is carefully subdued and is second in importance to the emotional work.

"The Flame of Life" is not a dainty story; it is decidedly realistic, but its beauty is said to be matchless from a standpoint of art. The ending comes suddenly, unexpectedly, and without any preparation for the heroine in the way of wealth, social climbing or even clothes. At the end she cannot even read or write intelligently.

This will be interesting to those critics who find fault with the golden endings that are too common in pictures. The "hero," a gentleman, wants to marry the slate picker (Miss Dean) but she refuses to, even though she loves him greatly, because she feels that the class distinction is too great a gulf to be bridged. She goes away to learn how to be a lady, but with a promise that when she returns, if he still feels the same way, she may give another answer.

Robert Ellis, Wallace Beery, Kathryn McGuire and Beatrice Burnham were given opportunities in the story for distinctly novel portrayals.

"Mrs. Norris knows women," said Miss Barriscale, in commenting upon the series which she has made, all from the same pen. "Or perhaps, it might be better to say that she and I have the same ideas about the inner hearts of women. At any rate her stories seem to me the most human and sympathetically written stories now to be found. That is why I have taken three of them for screen vehicles, and may take more."

MAY McAVOY.

"THROUGH A GLASS WINDOW" STAR.

It was a very "sweet" picture, the first photoplay in which May McAvoy ever appeared. For the young star who appears for the last time to-day at the World Theatre, in "Through a Glass Window," made her picture debut in a one-reel affair advertising a popular brand of sugar. She took that advertising job because the casting directors for regular legitimate drama couldn't "see her." They thought she was too small and failed to recognize the remarkable appeal of the girl.

When the "sugar" photoplay appeared, however, they revised their ideas and she leaped into instant popularity, a popularity which led to stardom following her appearance as "Grizel" in Barrie's "Sentimental Tommy."

"Through a Glass Window" is a Realist picture. It was written by Olga Printzlau and directed by Maurice Campbell. Raymond McKee is the leading man and heads an unusually strong supporting cast.

ROTARY.

ABOUT IT AND ABOUT.

[Our references to the desirability of establishing either an International Club in the Colony, or a Rotary Club, has excited interest. Thanks to Mr. R. L. Moeller, of the Chinese Y.M.C.A., we are enabled to give in concise form information regarding The Rotary Club and what it seeks to do. To aim at the very highest, and best, but to be content with the best possible, is the only true wisdom of Rotary," one writer has said, whilst another remarks, "The value of membership in Rotary depends upon whether or not we gain ideals of good, clean, vigorous, serviceable citizenship, and the ability to express such ideals in deeds which count." The individual Rotarian is enjoined to lead an exemplary life—"not perfect, for none are, but at least decent."]

THE ROTARY CLUB.

Meets once each week for luncheon or dinner.

Membership formed on the unique plan of an active and representative man from each line of business and profession in the community.

OBJECTS.

To encourage and foster:

(a) High ethical standards in business and professions.

(b) The ideal of SERVICE as the basis of all worthy enterprise.

(c) The active interest of every Rotarian in the civic, commercial, social and moral welfare of his community.

(d) The development of a broad acquaintance as an opportunity for service as well as an aid to success.

(e) The interchange of ideas and of business methods as a means of increasing the efficiency and usefulness of Rotarians.

(f) The recognition of the worthiness of all legitimate occupations and the dignifying of the occupation of each Rotarian as affording him an opportunity to serve society.

MEMBERS.

Making the acquaintance of men you ought to know.

Genuine, wholesome good-fellowship.

Developing true and helpful friends.

Enlightenment as to other men's work, problems and successes.

Education in methods that increase efficiency.

Stimulation of your desire to be of service to your fellow men and society in general.

Business returns that come from enlarging your acquaintance and inspiring confidence in you and your business.

OBLIGATIONS.

To attend meetings regularly.

To pay dues promptly.

To act when called upon.

To be a big-hearted, broad-minded man—a man of energy and action—a real man—a Rotarian.

SCOPE AND PURPOSES.

A Rotary Club consists of men selected from each distinct business or profession, and is organized to accomplish:

First: The betterment of the individual member.

Second: The betterment of the member's business, both in a practical way and in an ideal way.

Third: The betterment of the member's craft or profession as a whole.

Fourth: The betterment of the member's home, his town, state and country, and of society as a whole.

THE BETTERMENT OF THE INDIVIDUAL MEMBER—PERSONALLY.

For its members Rotary provides activities which will:

(1) Extend their horizon of business experience.

(2) Stimulate their minds to travel in unfrequented channels of thought.

(3) Arouse them to service for others.

(4) Help them attain their greatest possibilities.

(5) Make them leaders among men.

THE BETTERMENT OF THE MEMBER'S BUSINESS—PRACTICAL AND IDEAL.

On the practical side, the Rotary activities provide an opportunity for increased business through the establishment of cordial, intimate, friendly relations between members.

THE BETTERMENT OF THE MEMBER'S HOME, HIS TOWN, STATE AND COUNTRY AND OF SOCIETY AS A WHOLE.

The activities of Rotarians in accomplishing these betterments naturally group themselves into two main lines of effort—Civics and Charities. Rotary's province is to train each of its members to be a better citizen, a better member of the Chamber of Commerce, a more loyal American, British, Canadian, etc. All phases of local civic activity should be freely discussed at meetings, and it is the Rotary Club officers to provide the members with knowledge of and inspiration for active participation in civic betterment. As a general rule, the manifestation of the Rotarian's interest in civics should result in his activity as an individual or as a member of the Chamber of Commerce, etc., rather than in concerted action in the name of the Rotary Club. There are specific instances, however, where service to the community demands that the Rotary Club shall act collectively, but such action should take place only after the most careful prior consideration. The activities of the Rotary Club should not duplicate the work of the many highly efficient organizations which are found in all towns and cities.

Any question on which the respective political parties have taken sides should not be submitted to a vote in any club. This restriction is obviously intended to safeguard the precious friendships which exist in the club.

No limitation or suggestion covering Rotary's work in charity has been attempted, and, therefore, the activities along this line are as numerous as the many forms of charity.

Rotary has a distinct field of its own, and it is mainly educational in character. It is differentiated from other organizations (1) by its limited membership, and (2) by its activities concerning the individual member's business, and (3) by its placing on the members the responsibility of awakening their respective crafts and professions to higher standards.

Rotary arose in 1905 out of an inspiration—literatureless. Since then much has been written on Rotary and some precedents established. There are two which are of sufficient importance to be kept constantly before us. One is: "Rotary meetings must never rely for enthusiasm on the false exhilaration of liquor." The second precedent is: "No unworthy just should be told by speakers at Rotary gatherings." This excludes not only the smutty story, but also the double-meaning impromptu hurled at the speaker from the floor. There are many other precedents, but none so strongly entrenched as the two just mentioned.

In so far as you give of yourself to Rotary, you will receive. You cannot take more out of Rotary than you put into it.

THE BETTERMENT OF THE MEMBER'S CRAFT OR PROFESSION AS A WHOLE.

Rotarians are representatives from Rotary to their respective classifications. The betterment of the member's craft or profession can be accomplished by carrying to the craft or profession Rotary's ideals of business morality and service.

While a member of the Rotary Club, filled with Rotary spirit, may make his business practices conform to Rotary ideals, this does not relieve him from the Rotary duty of trying to influence others of his classification who are outside of Rotary to do likewise. Let all Rotarians pay their debt of service in this way, and by this token can the whole business world be leavened. This is Rotary's greatest opportunity for service.

While a member of the Rotary Club, filled with Rotary spirit, may make his business practices conform to Rotary ideals, this does not relieve him from the Rotary duty of trying to influence others of his classification who are outside of Rotary to do likewise. Let all Rotarians pay their debt of service in this way, and by this token can the whole business world be leavened. This is Rotary's greatest opportunity for service.

THE BETTERMENT OF THE MEMBER'S HOME, HIS TOWN, STATE AND COUNTRY AND OF SOCIETY AS A WHOLE.

The activities of Rotarians in accomplishing these betterments naturally group themselves into two main lines of effort—Civics and Charities. Rotary's province is to train each of its members to be a better citizen, a better member of the Chamber of Commerce, a more loyal American, British, Canadian, etc. All phases of local civic activity should be freely discussed at meetings, and it is the Rotary Club officers to provide the members with knowledge of and inspiration for active participation in civic betterment. As a general rule, the manifestation of the Rotarian's interest in civics should result in his activity as an individual or as a member of the Chamber of Commerce, etc., rather than in concerted action in the name of the Rotary Club. There are specific instances, however, where service to the community demands that the Rotary Club shall act collectively, but such action should take place only after the most careful prior consideration. The activities of the Rotary Club should not duplicate the work of the many highly efficient organizations which are found in all towns and cities.

Any question on which the respective political parties have taken sides should not be submitted to a vote in any club. This restriction is obviously intended to safeguard the precious friendships which exist in the club.

No limitation or suggestion covering Rotary's work in charity has been attempted, and, therefore, the activities along this line are as numerous as the many forms of charity.

Rotary has a distinct field of its own, and it is mainly educational in character. It is differentiated from other organizations (1) by its limited membership, and (2) by its activities concerning the individual member's business, and (3) by its placing on the members the responsibility of awakening their respective crafts and professions to higher standards.

Rotary arose in 1905 out of an inspiration—literatureless. Since then much has been written on Rotary and some precedents established. There are two which are of sufficient importance to be kept constantly before us. One is: "Rotary meetings must never rely for enthusiasm on the false exhilaration of liquor." The second precedent is: "No unworthy just should be told by speakers at Rotary gatherings." This excludes not only the smutty story, but also the double-meaning impromptu hurled at the speaker from the floor. There are many other precedents, but none so strongly entrenched as the two just mentioned.

In so far as you give of yourself to Rotary, you will receive. You cannot take more out of Rotary than you put into it.

THE BETTERMENT OF THE MEMBER'S CRAFT OR PROFESSION AS A WHOLE.

Rotarians are representatives from Rotary to their respective classifications. The betterment of the member's craft or profession can be accomplished by carrying to the craft or profession Rotary's ideals of business morality and service.

Here is a splendid close-up of Alex Kels, rich Lodi cattleman, who picked up a stranger, murdered him and then fired his own automobile, in order to make it appear he had been killed. Then Kels fled in the hope, he says, his wife would collect his $100,000 life insurance. Kels is under arrest, and his wife, an expectant mother, has not even been told he is alive.

Edith Kelly Gould, shown here in her dressing room in the Alhambra Theatre, in Paris, where she is making a success as a dancer, is the divorced wife of Frank J. Gould, one of the sons of the late Jay Gould. As Edith Kelly, she was a hit on the stage when Gould married her. When she was billed to appear in Paris as "Edith Kelly Gould" Gould sought an injunction to prevent her use of the Gould name, but the French courts refused to grant it.

This beer needle-gun, in the hands of Lieutenant James Scully, of the Chicago Police Department, was seized in one of the raids the Windy City police are conducting to stop the flood of spurious beer. The can on the desk contains ether. The playful moonshiner shoots ether into near-beer with the needle-gun, and the deadly product seems nearer, while, in fact, according to experts, death is nearer.

In her cell in the Cook County Jail, Chicago, Mrs. Emily Strutyasky, wife of the Rev. Nicholas Strutyasky, pastor of a little Greek Catholic Church declares she expects to go to the gallows for shooting Rev. Father Basil Stetsuk to death in the confessional box of St. Nicholas' Greek Catholic Church in Chicago. She declared she felt no sorrow for her crime, which she laid to alleged defamatory remarks made by the priest about her husband and his alleged handling of church funds while he was in Chicago. Father Strutyasky will stand by his wife at her trial.

This is a photograph that has nothing to do with the declining mark or any other unpleasant subject. It is a seminary on wheels, leading to a degree of Bachelor of Agriculture. The photograph was taken at the Government School for Farm Girls at Schoorn, Bavaria, where every pupil is the daughter of an impoverished family of the German nobility. A two years' course is necessary to get a degree, and the graduates are fully capable of conducting the entire workings of a large farm. The course begins in February, when the first work in the field is done, and ends in November at the close of the harvest season.

Mme. Madge J. Jregut, of Tampico, Mexico, known as the best woman shot in the Southern Republic, uses modern methods in her search for big game. Her chief hunting ground lies in the Tamaulipas Mountains, which are to be reached only by long hard rides. However, by using an aeroplane she can reach the mountains in a few hours from Tampico.

Edwin C. Hoskins, an attaché of the Letterman General Hospital, in San Francisco, was all ready to be married to Mrs. Dorothy Wells when the hospital surgeons needed a suitable subject for a blood transfusion to save a patient's life. Hoskins' blood was the only kind that would do, so the wedding was held for a few days while he gave up a quart of blood to a woman he had never seen.
